COMMONWEALTH HELP CAN GET CHINA A SEAT

LONDON (Reuters)—A Commonwealth initiative on getting a United Nations seat for China is suggested today by the British Liberal newspaper, The Guardian.

"This group is in a position to ensure the admission of China. In 1963 only seven Commonwealth countries voted for China. Australia, Canada, New Zealand, Cyprus, Jamaica and Malaysia voted against, and Nigeria, Sierra Leone and Trinidad abstained. If these countries were to reverse their previous stand, they could, together with new Commonwealth members, ensure a majority vote."

Pair Faces Fraud Charges Over Windfall Promotion

Royal Inquiry Hits MacMillans

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP)—Criminal fraud charges were placed against the nationally-known mining team of George and Viola MacMillan today after issuance of a royal commission report lashing persons involved in the 1964 bubble of Windfall Oil and Mines Ltd. stock.

Attorney General Wishart said more charges will be disclosed later today. He did not state who else will be charged.

Two charges of fraud were lodged against each of the MacMillans. The husband was president and his wife promoter of Windfall when it took off for a dizzy ride on the Toronto Stock Exchange in July of last year.

Attorney General Wishart said they will surrender here Oct. 15. They were said to be in Nevada, site of the original properties of Windfall, whose skyrocket rise was hitched to rumors of a rich find in the Timmins, Ont., area last year.

Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly of the Ontario Appeal Court in his royal commission report—made public a few hours before the charges were lodged—attacked the pair for issuing "misleading" information that kept Windfall stock aloft while they made a killing.

Shocking Conduct By Ex-Director

Along with them, Mr. Justice Kelly castigated John Campbell, resigned director of the Ontario Securities Commission, for "shocking" conduct in interfering with market activities of the bouncing Windfall and at the same time trading in it personally while an official.

Campbell and his wife made a $29,000 profit on Windfall's rollercoaster ride, some of it by selling short before the stock skidded.

The MacMillans were charged under Criminal Code sections providing a maximum 10 years imprisonment for affecting the market price of stock by deceit or falsehood with intent to defraud, or for defrauding the public.

The commissioner was critical of some aspects of the way the stock exchange operates and he recommended "fairly drastic" changes in its conduct of business. He also proposed the

1,000,000 words, 70 witnesses

Mr. Justice Kelly heard 1,000,000 words from 70 witnesses in three months of public sittings in delving into the phenomenon of Windfall, which jumped in July, 1964, from an obscure 56 cents to a $5.60 on the coattails of the fabulous $2,000,000,000 base metal strike of Texas Gulf and Sulphur Co. in the Timmins area. By the time Windfall had nosedived back to 80 cents at the end of July, the MacMillan interests—George was president and Viola promoter—had cleaned up close to $1,500,000, according to evidence. Some

Hydro to Put Grab
On Rich Mine Claims

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two part-time prospectors expressed surprise today on learning that their mining claims, once valued at $100,000, are to be expropriated by the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

"This is the first I've heard of it," said Fred C. McNeill, in a telephone interview from Penticton. "A few days ago B.C. Hydro offered us $100 for our claims but we thought this was ridiculous and didn't accept it."

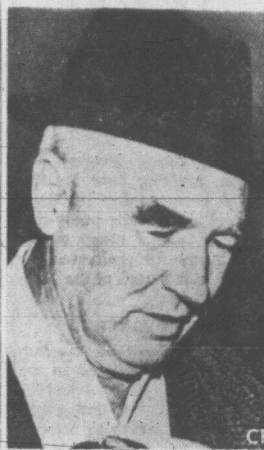

In Victoria Wednesday the cabinet endorsed an order-in-council authorizing B.C. Hydro to take possession of four mining claims in the Revelstoke area without consent of the claim holders, for the Mica Creek power project on the Columbia River. McNeill and a friend, Eric S. Hill of Naramata, each held two of the claims which they located and recorded in 1953.

McNeill said he believes the claims contain kyanite, mica and garnet. He said he and Hill were once offered $100,000 by a mining company but the offer was withdrawn when B.C. Hydro's interest in the properties became known.

"We realize that we can't hold up the building of a dam but we do think we should get fair compensation," McNeill said. "There's a lot of difference between $100 and $100,000."

In Victoria, mines minister Brothers said the matter should go to arbitration. "If the prospectors can show the $100,000 offer was bonafide, they would have a pretty good case before an arbitration board."

HOSTAGES SAFE

Two Men Surrender To Police

ST. JEROME (CP)—Two of Quebec's most wanted men, who held three persons hostage in a nearby farmhouse gave themselves up to provincial police today two hours after police put a cordon around the house.

The pair gave themselves up after talking for an hour with reporter Marcel Lamarche of Montreal radio station CJMS. He persuaded them to give him their guns—a .22-calibre and a .303-calibre rifle—and he turned these over to police.

The men walked out of the house shortly after. About 30 policemen were waiting for them on the farm about 30 miles northwest of Montreal.

The men, George Normand and Andre Daoust are wanted in connection with a bank robbery May 27 at St. Leonard.

TWO OTHERS ARRESTED

Two other men already have been arrested in the robbery during which a passerby was shot and wounded and two bank employees taken hostage and later released.

Chief Inspector Herve Patenaude said two men held two women and a four-year-old child hostage. He said another woman and child were released earlier.

SPACE LADY STILL HUNTED

LONDON (AP)—Col. John Glenn said today none of the American women who have volunteered for space flights have been considered as suitable as men, but one may some day be chosen.

That was the U.S. astronaut's answer at a press conference to British women writers who said the U.S. space program discriminated against their sex and wanted to know why.

Glenn and his wife Annie are on a goodwill tour.

THE PM'S TOOTH ACHED... AND A NATION WAS BORN

By MYRON K. MYERS

LONDON (AP)—A toothache determined the exact time of the granting of independence to the Maldives Islands—the newest, smallest and least populated member of the United Nations.

Maldivian Prime Minister Ibrahim Nasir had been nursing a toothache at his home in Male, the capital of the British-protectorate island chain in the Indian Ocean. Since there are no dentists in the Maldives, he set out on the three-day boat trip to Ceylon.

The British had held the Maldives since 1887, but had long ago drawn up independence papers for the 95,000 inhabitants. So Nasir decided July 26 that since he was in Colombo, Ceylon, he would drop by the British high commissioner's office and sign the papers. That was about all there was to it.

There was no Union Jack to haul down. No members of British royalty were present. Nasir enabled the Maldivians to join the stampede of newly emerging countries simply by signing his name.

The 2,000 coral islands—220 inhabited—that make up the Maldives form a north-south, 500-mile chain 400 miles south-west of Ceylon. Combined they total 115 square miles.

The Central Islands, which have been under the direct rule of the sultan at Male (population 12,000), were settled by Arabs from the Middle East and Indonesia. The people of the Southern Islands are related to the Sinhalese villagers of Ceylon.

The islands have always governed themselves. Britain never sent a permanent administrator to Male. The only responsibility she assumed was to conduct nonexistent foreign affairs and little needed defence.

RHODESIA United States Intervenes In Crisis

LONDON (Reuters)—The United States stepped into the Rhodesian crisis at the 11th hour today when an American charge d'affaires delivered a message to Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith.

The message was delivered orally by Philip Kaiser from the American embassy just before Smith was scheduled to meet British Prime Minister Wilson in an effort to reach a compromise on the thorny question of Rhodesian independence. Embassy spokesmen would not reveal the content of the message.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Wilson and Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley reported on the deadlocked negotiations to a 1½-hour cabinet meeting.

A group of Americans paraded outside the Rhodesian high commission office with placards reading: "U.D.I. (unilateral declaration of independence) means war with Africans," and "Mr. Wilson should be tough with Smith."

Talks have continued in London for three days as Prime Minister Smith attempted to press his case for Rhodesian independence with no strings attached.

Today's move by the U.S. followed representations to Smith by the Canadian and New Zealand governments through their high commissioners Tuesday, warning of the dangers of an unconstitutional seizure of independence.

Smith and Wilson appeared to be steering a collision course as they prepared for what were seen as the decisive talks today.

The rupture that seemed likely—with Smith demanding independence under Rhodesia's present all-white government, and Wilson continuing to refuse unless the colony's African majority were assured of voting rights—threatened to wreck the Rhodesian economy and perhaps even shatter the British Commonwealth.

President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania, one of the African Commonwealth members, declared Wednesday night in a televised interview that if Britain yielded to Smith's demands, Tanzania would drop out of the Commonwealth.

Ont. Liberal Chief Faces Four Charges

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Ontario Liberal leader Andrew Thompson today was remanded until Oct. 21 when he appeared in court here on four charges laid following a two-car collision late Wednesday in which four women were injured.

Police said he was charged with dangerous driving, impaired driving, careless driving and failure to yield one-half of the road.

Four women from Harwood, Ont., occupants of the second car, were treated in hospital. One woman, Mrs. Ida O'Connell, was in serious condition with head injuries.

Mr. Thompson was released on $100 bail.

'Lime Pit Murders' Now Campaign Issue

By VICTOR MACKIE

Times Ottawa Bureau

'Should Have Laid Charges'

TORONTO (CP)—Erik Nielsen, Progressive Conservative member of the last Parliament for the Yukon, said Wednesday night that charges should have been laid against the Seifkins brothers, Max and Adolph, on the basis of information supplied to the superintendent of bankruptcy.

Mr. Nielsen said in an interview that Prime Minister Pearson now should order an RCMP investigation into the bankruptcy of the Seifkins, who sold furniture on credit to two federal cabinet ministers. Max Seifkind has since died.

Mr. Nielsen said reports on the Seifkins could be found in the offices of J. S. Larose, superintendent of bankruptcy, and in other Ottawa offices.

At a nomination meeting in Brantford, Ont., Wednesday night Mr. Nielsen said the slayings in Quebec are the result of international and national crime cartels "that have reached their tentacles into the highest offices of the land—that is, the office of the prime minister."

He did not elaborate on the reference to Mr. Pearson's office.

Integrationist Beaten

CRAWFORDVILLE, Ga. (AP)—Several white men attacked a white integrationist today, pulling him from his car and beating him with their fists minutes after Negroes tried again to board school buses carrying white children.

OTTAWA—Quebec's macabre lime pit murders have become an issue in the federal election campaign as opposition leaders are using it to try to shake the Pearson government.

Meantime from Quebec police sources have come reports of an international criminal association engineering fraudulent bankruptcies and arson in Montreal, Toronto, Calgary and Winnipeg.

Opposition leader Diefenbaker and New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas have sought to lay at the feet of the federal Liberal government some of the responsibility for the grisly case in Quebec.

Mr. Douglas said today "public figures" might yet be involved in the bankruptcy swindles that led to discovery of the three murder victims. (Quebec Justice Minister Claude Wagner has said he believes at least 12 people have been executed in the style of Murder Inc. to stop investigation into a $100 million bankruptcy and arson fraud ring.)

LEADS TO COMMONS

In Montreal a senior fraud squad investigator told newsmen that the trail of phony bankruptcies in Quebec leads into the House of Commons.

He said that seven or eight men who have been members of Parliament have been involved in bankruptcies under investigation. Most of them represented Quebec constituencies either as Liberals or Conservatives, he said.

The remains of three lime-burned bodies have been recovered from graves in swamp-land south of Quebec City. Police are digging for two other bodies at other points south of Quebec.

They would have been key witnesses in bankruptcies now

10-Point Farm Program Includes Income Support

WINNIPEG (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson announced Wednesday several new farm policy election plans, including a commitment to support Prairie farm income if grain marketings fall off.

He told a press conference the 10 points, which include at least one previously announced, are commitments to be undertaken after the Nov. 8 general election.

The program would not all be put into effect at once but would be carried out over the five-year lifetime of the next Parliament.

Chief points in the program:

● Federal payment of 25 per cent, instead of the present 20 per cent, of crop insurance premiums plus half the administrative costs provided the provincial government contributes five per cent of the premiums.

● Government purchase, re-development and resale to farmers of uneconomic farms coupled with re-training and re-settlement aid to farmers who want to take up new occupations.

WOULD GIVE CONTROL

● Establishment of a Canadian dairy commission to give producers of manufacturing milk control of prices, quotas, quality and export. This was expected to lead to a national average price for manufacturing milk of $3.75 to $4.00 a hundredweight.

● Similar marketing legislation for other products, including a national sugar policy.

● Extension of unemployment insurance to the main groups of full-time farm workers.

● Establishment of a livestock feed board to ensure feed grains are available in Eastern Canada and British Columbia "when, where and in the quantities needed."

● Creation of a Canadian farm management service to help farmers determine market trends and plan production.

● An additional $50,000,000 fund under the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act for rural economic development. This fund was announced previously.

● A new mortgage program to finance farm housing, especially for farm workers.

● Prairie farm income support.

Analyst's Comments

By HAL MALONE

FIRST RACE: Pascanna ran for $2,500 on opening day and when they drop this sharply they are usually suspect. But in this case the drop seems explainable—they apparently believe she was in too tough. Solid Beat looks as the one to beat—she's been hanging on better and the track won't stop her. Fishermaid ran into a little trouble in her last and if Salas gets clear she could get on the board. If Pascanna is the filly we think she is, she should take it sun, rain or concrete. . . . PASCANNA (Solid Beat).

SECOND RACE: Sans Brazil just finished mopping up the floor with much the same kind and we see no reason why she shouldn't repeat—she drops three pounds and hasn't run a bad race in a light campaign. Cor-Asia is one we fear most. Throw out her slop try—she likes it fast. Rush Call is the danger from behind. Phanta's Girl is better than her last show and could surprise at a price. . . . SANS BRAZIL (Cor-Asia).

THIRD RACE: Horses stepping up, horses dropping—handicappers in a conundrum. Border Spy is the big question mark. He's travelled well with better but he lacks a race over the track and hasn't run in more than a month. We look for Windy Song, Swan Lady, Comterpart and Man of Mark to vie for the lead with Astella. Wally's Gem and Monday's Lady not far behind. The winner might come out of the pack and if Monday's Lady is returning to the form she showed in the spring, she could take it all. . . . MONDAY'S LADY (Wally's Gem).

FOURTH RACE: Totem Miss ran smack into a pair of hot ones, Whang Leather and Colinda and couldn't hold them. But there doesn't seem to be anything of that calibre against her here. Jeannellz hits rock bottom today but the way she's been stopping is not much consolation even to her most ardent backers. Miss Simon and Nephenthe have a look with these. With these and if Star Pal forgets to stop he could share it. They're switching riders on Mr. Wasp and although he's picking up five pounds his mud try was encouraging. . . . TOTEM MISS (Nephenthe).

FIFTH RACE: His Jimmy drops again today, looking for a spot. This one might be alright except in Advance chose to run. They both like to plop in front early and could easily choke each other. Orista has been chasing good ones and seems at his best but he'll have to come from out of it. Mr. Terry drops six pounds and off his Portland form belongs. Our serious thinking, though, was between Carmar Doo and Ardorin. We don't like many horses breaking from the outside but Ardorin obviously needed her last after a layoff and should be much sharper today. Carmar Doo loomed dangerously—he might have made his move a trifle too soon—but from the rail Salas should be able to save ground. In a grab-bag. . . . ARDORIN (Carmar Doo).

SIXTH RACE: Right down into the eligibles the contention runs deep here. There's such a lack of early pace that Brown Wheat, if he draws in, could stroll out in front and be very hard to catch. Cheka Cheka comes off two longer races but he's very fit and probably is the chalk. Hamish, the prairie gelding Fair Results and Dr. Peace all have been knocking around the door and could open it. Sir Lea gets awfully far out of it and gets a different boy. Little Boy Fly packs weight and wins impressively over much the same and could be very dangerous. If she gets a top ride, however, they may port if marketing declines. Mr. Pearson, arriving here for two days of campaigning in Manitoba, told a 25-minute press conference details of many of the points in the program will be given at later stages of the campaign.

PROVIDES ADVANCES

He said the sort of program which would be covered in the income-support plan would be cash advances on unthreshed grain. Amendments to provide such cash advances would be placed before Parliament.

However, the income-support promise would also include non-emergency programs such as the extra aid to payment of crop insurance.

On unemployment insurance for full-time farm workers, he said the unemployment insurance commission expects to have regulations ready by the start of 1966 covering the first groups.

He said Agriculture Minister Hays will go into the details of income-support levels.

Mr. Hays had been impressed during a visit to Europe earlier in the year by examples of government purchase, re-development and re-sale of uneconomical farms and a good deal of work had been done on the proposed program by him and Forestry Minister Sauve.

The purpose was to get people off land which would never be economic, consolidate farms into economic units and re-sell them for farming. This might be one way of using some of the new $50,000 ARDA fund.

PROMISES CARRIED OVER

He said in reply to questions that he considers the Liberals have "substantially carried out our promise" to name a minister for eastern agriculture.

Mr. Sauve had charge of rural development and certain other functions previously filled by the agriculture minister as well as of the forestry department.

"I'm not saying all this is going to be done overnight. It's a program for a parliament."

Mr. Pearson paid a helicopter visit to a farm near Rivers, Man., to survey crop damage from wet weather before arriving here. He remains here overnight before moving on to Winkler, Man., for a public meeting.

Hotel Fined For Color Bar

MONTREAL (CP)—Hilton of Canada Ltd., was found guilty Monday of discrimination against a Negro applicant for a nursing job at Montreal's Queen Elizabeth Hotel and was fined the minimum $25 and costs by Judge Marcel Gauthier.

The sessions court judge handed down an oral decision on a charge brought by Mrs. Gloria Baylis, 35, mother of two who said she was turned down for a part-time nursing job because of her color.

The Quebec government laid the charge under a discrimination law that went into effect Sept. 1, 1964.

FRAUD CHARGES

members of the brokerage community had stretched the regulations to cash in, too.

The commissioner commented that some of these seemed to think the exchange was "a private gaming club" for the use of special privileges to their own advantage.

Most of the gyrations of Windfall-located only 4½ miles from Texas Gulf's find—were pegged to a drilling sample, or core, taken from the property in early July. While the MacMillans kept it under cover, rumor sent the stock sky-high. When the core was disclosed publicly as valueless, on July 30, the Windfall boom collapsed.

KNOW IT WAS WORTHLESS

As early as July 6, the commissioner says, George MacMillan must have been aware of the core's lack of value. This knowledge "was, no doubt, shared by his wife."

"At any time after the opening of the market on July 6, had George and Viola MacMillan seen fit to make a frank statement regarding what was in the drill core, the unusual market action would have been appreciably slowed if not stalled."

"Not only did they refrain from telling the truth, but in such statements as were made, the facts which were stated and the manner in which they were framed were such as to be misleading and must have been calculated so to be."

At another point the report says: "Many people who entered the market after July 7 suffered losses through the complete failure of George and Viola MacMillan, as officers and controlling shareholders of a company, to recognize their obligations to see that trading of the shares of the company on a public exchange took place in the light of the most accurate information available and without any misinformation capable of correction which had a direct bearing on the market price."

Mr. Justice Kelly struck sharply at Mr. Campbell, who was suspended as director of the securities commission after his involvement with Windfall transactions came out and who subsequently resigned.

Mr. Campbell successfully fought off attempts to have trading of Windfall suspended on the exchange while he and his wife were trading in it—and the commissioner said such actions were unjustified and showed "complete misconception of the duties incumbent upon him as director."

The evidence showed that Mr. Campbell enlisted Mines Minister Wardrobe as an intermediary with Howard Graham, president of Toronto Stock Exchange, was demanding an informative statement from Windfall with possible delisting in the background—but the commissioner observed that Mr. Campbell had not told the minister of his own financial involvement.

tration for taking no action when faced with an international bankruptcy racket netting tens of millions of dollars.

He has demanded that the government should produce a "hidden" report on bankruptcies. He has alleged that if it had been made available by Ottawa there would have been less possibility that these "horrible crimes" would have been committed.

Prime Minister Pearson today flatly denied that there is any "hidden" report.

In Ottawa federal government officials are puzzled by Mr. Diefenbaker's reference to a so-called "hidden" report. The only report they know of is the report on the Selfridg bankruptcies, which is the routine report to the superintendent of bankruptcies.

CAN'T BE TABLED

Any creditor is entitled to see the report which sets out all the debtors, but it is not available to the public and consequently cannot be tabled in the House of Commons.

Mr. Douglas said "there has been gross negligence on someone's part."

"The finger points directly to the former federal minister of justice (Guy Favreau) to whom the federal superintendent of bankruptcies reports," he said.

Quebec justice department officials in Quebec are also exploring the possibility that underworld associates of the late Max Seifrid, the bankrupt furniture dealer, who gave two federal cabinet ministers extremely easy credit terms, are involved in the murders.

PARIS (Reuters) — France and its five European Common Market partners have started conversations on the Common Market crisis, it was disclosed today.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bladen report on higher education expenses misgivings about two student aid programs advocated by the Liberal party.

The commission of four experts says it is worried about over-dependence on student loans as opposed to non-repayable aid.

It adds that tax concessions to students and their parents would be more effective and more easily administered than "the much discussed proposal of 10,000 national scholarships."

Both the loans plan and 10,000 scholarships of $1,000 each annually were promised by the Liberals in the 1963 election. Prime Minister Pearson promised Tuesday that if re-elected the government would allocate $10,000,000 annually for student scholarships. After four years the fund would increase in line with the population of the 18-24 age group. Mr. Pearson also promised Sept. 24 to boost the $40,000,000 student loan fund set up a year ago.

The Bladen report recommends that the loan fund be expanded "as becomes necessary" but adds words of caution:

"We are worried by the high proportion of student aid in the form of loans and hope that other forms of aid will slow down the growth in the volume of federal student loans. There will surely remain an important role for such loans in the next few years."

The commission recommends that government cash grants to university and college students be boosted to $245,000,000 in 1975 from about $40,000,000 last year. The provinces would continue to contribute the majority of the aid.

GROOS RE-ELECTED

NEW YORK (CP) — Capt. David W. Groos, Liberal member of Parliament for Victoria attending the NATO parliamentarians' conference, said Wednesday night "there has been a remarkable improvement in the atmosphere among the Atlantic Alliance countries" since last spring.

He said he has found that the French delegation to the week-long conference is of the opinion that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization "is a good thing" and that "it is essential" for United States troops to remain in Europe.

Groos said some delegates had been apprehensive before the opening of the conference Monday about President de Gaulle's threat to withdraw France from the alliance because of De Gaulle's dissatisfaction with the military organization arrangements.

But as the talks got under way, he said, "we found that France is not dissatisfied with the treaty itself" but only with some of the present arrangements of the alliance.

Underlying the apprehension of the member nations is the fact that under Article 13 of the North Atlantic Treaty any one country can give a one-year notice in 1963 of its intention to withdraw within one year.

France had expressed dissatisfaction with the arrangements of NATO. She seeks greater sharing of authority. One of the questions discussed by delegates was the French dissatisfaction.

EXCHANGE IDEAS
The parliamentarians' conference gives the delegates of the NATO nations an opportunity to exchange ideas on the various issues although they speak only as individuals and not as spokesmen for their governments.

Groos was one of eight members of the Canadian delegation, reduced from the normal 15 because of the Nov. 8 general election in Canada. The other Canadians taking part are senators.

Despite the election campaign, Groos had to attend because he is a

Canadians Get 'Few Benefits'

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — The New Democratic Party wants all Canadians to reap the benefits of this scientific age, T. C. Douglas said here Wednesday night.

PC WORKERS MEET TONIGHT

Progressive Conservative Party workers will prepare for the Nov. 8 election battle tonight.

Party workers will meet Conservative candidate Clifford Waite in the War Amps hall, Oak Bay Avenue, at 8 p.m.

On Saturday, the Conservatives officially open their campaign headquarters at 1433 Douglas Street.

Rev. Waite will be on hand to chat with visitors beginning at 10 a.m.

Premier Praises Hunter Move

Ex-city clerk Frank Hunter is the type of candidate that "people of all political parties and no political party alike can support," according to Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

He met Mr. Hunter Wednesday and said he was a good example of the "non-political, non-partisan" type of candidate drawn to Social Credit ranks.

Mr. Hunter joined the party only after he was nominated as a candidate for the Nov. 8 election.

The premier said he was happy to see Mr. Hunter "go the second mile" in public service after 48 years as city clerk. "He can rise above politics and put country and community first," said the premier.

Plans for the visit a week from Friday by Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker have been confirmed.

He will arrive by private plane at 4:15 p.m. and address a Tory rally in the Bay Street Armory that night, leaving the city the following morning.

New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas will follow him two weeks later, flying in to Patricia Bay airport at 12:15 p.m. Oct. 29 for a meeting that night in the Royal Theatre. He will catch the last Air-Canada flight of the night to return to the mainland.

'Spoils System' Hit By Socred Leader

REGINA (CP)—Party politics have degenerated into something popularly known as the spoils system, national Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said Wednesday.

"It is a little less than the law of the jungle applied to our political system of government," he said.

Speaking at a combined fundraising dinner and nominating convention here, Mr. Thompson told about 150 supporters that "bankrupt old political parties have adopted the socialistic policy that the end justifies the means; the rights of the minority do not matter; personal freedom is sacrificed in the interest of the state or a political machine; and political programs are designed to appeal to the selfish instincts of mankind."

He said when a nation loses sight of principles that uphold individual liberty and freedom and substitute that which is second best, "or is a compromise on principle," it no longer has solid guidelines to follow when assessing that which is good or bad in that nation's political, economic or social affairs.

The Liberals and the Progressive Conservatives have had 98 years in which to prepare the country for what the NDP leader called a scientific revolution, but those parties have been too busy doing other things.

"They should be ashamed of themselves," he said. Addressing a party rally of about 550 persons, Mr. Douglas said the main issue in the Nov. 8 election is leadership. Canada needs a leader capable of picking up loose ends and giving purpose and direction to the startling changes brought about by scientific advances.

"Without guidance this scientific revolution will bring about economic depression, poverty and want."

"We have a distorted sense of values in this rat race we call an affluent society. We've got enough service stations to look after our cars but not enough hospitals to look after our sick."

Mr. Douglas motored to this automotive city after earlier flying to Toronto from the hustings in Quebec. He was to leave Toronto today for a rally tonight in Vancouver.

CREATE MORE JOBS

An NDP government would lead Canadians into "a new flowering of the soul" by creating more jobs and industry, Mr. Douglas said. Under his leadership, such a government would create "1,500,000 new jobs by 1970." It also would set up a national industrial development commission to equalize industrial growth in all parts of the country.

Mr. Douglas said Prime Minister Pearson lacks the backbone required of a country's leader to ensure that all citizens, not merely the "corporate elite" among the wealthy, enjoy adequate social-welfare benefits.

On the report of Dean Vincent W. Bladen concerning university education in Canada, Mr. Douglas said it was short-sighted because it advocated retention of tuition fees.

An NDP government would eliminate tuition fees in all Canadian universities, schools of nursing and technological institutes. Money for this would "come by way of grants or tax abatement."

Whispered Voice Puzzling

WINNIPEG (CP) — A mysterious voice on tape recordings of Prime Minister Pearson's press conference here Wednesday has puzzled Mr. Pearson's staff and reporters.

Reporters speculated that the words may have been said by photographers who were shooting pictures across the table from the prime minister.

The voice was recorded on tapes made by the prime minister's staff and by reporters, uttering three words at a key point in Mr. Pearson's reply to accusations made by Progressive Conservative Leader Diefenbaker.

Mr. Pearson had just denied the existence of any hidden report on bankruptcies, the publication of which Mr. Diefenbaker has suggested might have made five gangland slayings less likely to have happened.

"There is no such report and I would like anyone to disprove that," Mr. Pearson said. At this point, the recordings carry another sentence in whispered tones saying "They've got it."

The voice is different from Mr. Pearson's and the prime minister's press secretary, Richard O'Hagan, who was standing closest to Mr. Pearson told reporters he did not pronounce the words. Mr. O'Hagan did prompt Mr. Pearson at one point in low tones at a later stage in the press conference.

NECK-AND-NECK BATTLE IN BIG OTTAWA RIDING

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—Carleton, the "safest" seat in Parliament until 1963, is one of the most doubtful in this election campaign with two canny politicians running neck and neck.

The sprawling constituency, taking in a large slice of southwest Ottawa, elected Conservatives in 31 straight elections and byelections after Confederation—an unmatched record of party loyalty in federal politics.

Included were former party leaders Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Robert Borden and George Drew. But in the 1963 vote, Liberal candidate Lloyd Francis scored a major upset, dumping then immigration Minister Richard (Dick) Bell by 1,157 votes.

Both men have been campaigning steadily and recruiting armies of party workers since their last contest. Both appear supremely confident this time and there is talk of a photo finish Nov. 8.

"We didn't stop after the last election—we just kept on going," Mr. Francis says.

A 45-year-old real estate executive with a PhD in economics and nine years experience as a senior civil servant, the white-haired Liberal candidate counts on heavy support from government employees and white-collar workers who have been flocking to new west-end suburbs.

Mr. Bell, 52, a lawyer who served as national Conservative organizer for 20 years before he entered Parliament in 1957, is banking on dissatisfaction over political scandals, adoption of the maple leaf flag and bilingualism in the civil service.

Mr. Francis acknowledges that such dissatisfaction exists. Local newspapers reported in January he was displeased with the government's record and ready to retire, but the party leadership persuaded him to stay on.

The third candidate nominated so far, New Democrat Donald Stirling, a United Church minister, has a big hill to climb—his predecessor in 1963 received only 3,144 votes of the 66,000 cast. Mr. Francis received 32,325, Mr. Bell 31,168, and a Social Credit candidate 609.

Mr. Bell, who crushed his opponents with a 19,000-vote margin in the Conservative landslide of 1958, says he lost in 1963 because of reaction against a civil service pay freeze imposed by the Diefenbaker government in the second half of 1962.

WARMLY RECEIVED DURING ONTARIO TOUR

John Tackles West With Cries of Scandal

By IAN MACDONALD
Times Ottawa Bureau

TORONTO — John Diefenbaker's first Western Canada tour in the current election campaign began today after a six-day Ontario swing.

The Tory leader's schedule called for a flight from here to Winnipeg and then a train tour through the west to British Columbia.

MARATHON JAUNT

Diefenbaker looked fit and rested after a marathon jaunt in southwestern Ontario at a non-stop clip.

It began with the high spot in Toronto last Friday with a well-organized rally that drew some 7,000 people.

The enthusiasm generated there was not repeated in the next five days.

He generally was received warmly, if not wildly enthusiastically.

He wasn't the fiery Diefenbaker of old, able to spark an audience anywhere, any time.

MAJOR BATTLEGROUND

The country he travelled is a major battleground in this election.

Between Lake Erie and Lake Huron are 20 ridings in the last Parliament the Tories held 20 and the Liberals 10.

To have any chance of forming a government, Dief has to hold what he has and possibly pick up some more.

During the tour, he brought out little that was new in his party's platform—and added little to the broad outline of points made earlier—but made it evident that his campaign in the remaining weeks to Nov. 8 will lean heavily on attacks on Prime Minister Lester Pearson's leadership, and scandals within the Liberal government.

The discovery of the bodies in Quebec's bankruptcy-arson racket mass murders was seized on by Diefenbaker as an election issue, and he accused the federal government of negligence in its handling of the Bankruptcy Act.

MAN-TO-MAN AFFAIR

The impression after the tour is that his election will be to a considerable degree a man-to-man affair with the emphasis on the individual candidates, past records, and some local issues.

And only the results on voting day will give any indication of what Dief's efforts achieved.

Alta. Grits Oppose Medicare

EDMONTON (CP)—Two federal Liberal candidates in Edmonton have come out against a compulsory national medical care insurance program.

Bill Sinclair, Edmonton lawyer and candidate for Edmonton-Strathcona, said in a four-party forum Tuesday that a medical care program should not be available to all.

Dr. Herbert Meltzer, Liberal candidate in Edmonton West, also has spoken out against a compulsory plan.

The federal government has proposed a compulsory medical care scheme under which all persons would be compelled to accept registration as beneficiaries.

Under a voluntary scheme—backed by Dr. Meltzer and Mr. Sinclair—it would be up to each person to decide whether to register as beneficiary.

At his evening rally in Kitchener, he keyed much of his 68-minute address to university students and a large group of older people in the audience.

Dief repeated his party's plans for massive aid to higher education, but gave no new figures of the amounts a Tory government would spend.

Earlier in the day he had referred to Liberal plans for scholarship aid as "piecemeal."

He also played on the 11 per cent sales tax. Diefenbaker said he wanted a home-owner society in Canada rather than a renting one, and he said the tax was tough on young people trying to get started.

He repeated an earlier prediction that the trade deficit this year will be $1.5 billion, about twice last year's.

The Tory leader said the Liberals have divided Canada, and asked if the people are prepared to accept the principle of provinces making treaties.

He also accused the federal government of dealing off Eskimos like pawns to the provinces.

A Statement of the Need

THE BASIC THESIS OF THE Bladen Commission report on financing higher education in Canada is that a rapidly increasing number of Canadian citizens is qualifying for entrance to colleges and universities and that we are not responding quickly enough in meeting their demands for higher education. Both on their account, and in the interests of the country at large, we must greatly increase the funds available for building and operating colleges and universities, and we must do it as soon as possible.

Discussion of the means by which this may be done forms the bulk of the report, but public argument as to the merit of one method or another must not be allowed to obscure the major premise: that higher education must be financed on a vastly increased scale.

There will be no point in hand-wringing over the huge sums involved, no point in comparing today's demands with the much more comfortable figures of a decade or more ago, no point in continuing to look on higher education as a relative luxury for a relative few. The whole situation has changed; the horizons have broadened immeasurably; our lives cannot be what they were and we must face it.

Training in the many branches of science and in its varied applications is a necessity for the individual and for the nation in today's world; education in the humanities and the arts is an increasingly necessary preparation to meet the problems of modern life and the cultural demands of leisure time in the automated age upon which we are now entering.

The Bladen report, noting that Canadian universities spent in excess of $500 millions last year, foresees the need for $1.3 billions five years from now, and more than $2 billions in 1975-76. The consensus is that up to 80 per cent of this must come from governments, with the federal authority providing 40 per cent of all operating and research costs. Between 30 and 40 per cent of all university costs would be required of provincial governments, as well as much greater provision for student aid.

Obviously, such sums would comprise major items in all government budgets; equally obviously, in the absence of any other adequate source, governments at all levels will have to recognize their responsibility. This cannot be permitted to become a political matter, with one authority attempting to shift its obligations onto another. Higher education must stand with national defence, public works, transportation, welfare and other recognized responsibilities as a major budgetary item, and participation by the national government on a large, even dominant scale, seems inevitable in view of the tax base required.

The Canadian problem, of course, is complicated by the provision of the BNA Act which gives the provinces exclusive rights over education. Federal financing must be done with very limited control over the spending.

It is not likely that all the recommendations of the Bladen Commission will be carried out. But the point has been clearly made that the present provision of money is quite inadequate to meet the expanding need. The current election campaign will encourage all parties to promise all things in regard to education. But the parties will not be competing only with each other. They will be demonstrating their reactions to an urgent national necessity.

Getting It All On Tapes

A YEAR-LONG EXPERIMENTAL program carried out by four aero-space companies on behalf of the government of California was concluded this week with reports on the application of space-age engineering techniques to the solution of some basic earthbound problems.

Evaluation of the reports in detail is yet to be carried out but already it seems clear that computerized engineering is destined in the future to take much of the guesswork out of governmental decisions.

Basically the four companies were given contracts to apply the same kind of systems-engineering techniques used in the development of space craft to the problems of garbage disposal, transportation congestion, crime prevention and the proliferation of paperwork.

Skilled specialists, using the most advanced analytical techniques, were told to define the essential elements of the problem and to recommend solutions based on all foreseeable contingencies. In transportation, for instance, it was reported that such matters as water desalination and advanced communication devices had to be taken into consideration. The former would likely result in the population of great areas which are now desert while instantaneous transfer of data could bring work back to the home and make long daily journeys to and from the office unnecessary.

The report on garbage disposal foresaw the installation of disposal equipment in every home instead of today's pickup service. An early-warning system could be programmed on computers based on statistical analysis to alert law enforcement bodies of potential danger areas. To eliminate paperwork in the state government, it was recommended that all vital information and statistics be placed on computer tapes where it would be instantly available for intelligent decision-making.

The reports all emphasized that the computers could not make decisions; they could only develop quickly the alternative solutions to problems. And this factor leads to another problem as difficult to solve as the four that were examined. How are all the people with vested interests in the status quo to be persuaded that rational engineering decisions should dictate the manner in which public needs are served?

A Lonely India

SHAROKH SABAVALA, SPECIAL correspondent for The Christian Science Monitor writing from New Delhi, finds the Indian leaders highly sensitive to the world reaction resulting from the conflict in Kashmir.

In the writer's opinion, the Indians see themselves as almost friendless. They feel that the United States has done little to enforce its strictures on Pakistan against using American-supplied arms in the fighting. They incline to the belief that Britain has been partisan in Pakistan's favor. The silence of once amicable powers in the Middle East and Arab worlds is taken as something other than neutrality—a certain hostility to the course India has pursued.

These are disillusioning discoveries for the people of the sub-continent. It might be unfair to suggest that they practised a self-righteous attitude in their criticism of other nations caught up in strife at an earlier time. But they had their representatives—such as Mr. Krishna Menon—who were willing enough to spill venom on so-called Indian allies in the days when Mr. Nehru's pleas for world accord and understanding had been unshaken by the kind of conflict in which he and India later became involved.

To some people in the country, according to Mr. Sabavala, the realization is coming home that they have taken their international friends too much for granted. But to people as sensitive as the Indians, and as deeply involved emotionally in their present struggle, even lack of enthusiasm by their friends can be misconstrued as opposition, and mere neutrality can appear as enmity.

Poverty's Threat to Peace

THE bankers and monetary experts who met in Washington last week did not at the time seem to be doing very much. Yet, in the large perspective of time their meeting may well come to be thought of as historically important.

For the report of the World Bank and the address of its president, George Woods, opened up, as officially it has never been opened up before, the problem which is crucial in the promotion of world peace—the problem of the relationship between the richer and the poorer nations of the globe.

This was not the advertised theme of the meeting. Generally speaking, attention was focused on how much progress could be made toward an agreement on the reform of the International Monetary System. This would be an agreement essentially between the United States and Britain on the one hand and the continental European bankers on the other. There was no substantial progress toward such an agreement, and for that reason the international meeting seemed rather uninteresting and unimportant.

But we can see in retrospect that there was no good reason to expect much progress on monetary reform. The question posed to the bankers was what kind of "effective and adequate substitute" they would agree to provide for the dollar deficits, now that, as President Johnson told them, "the long period of large U.S. deficits has come to an end."

The bankers did not provide the substitute. The reason was, no doubt, that there is no immediate crisis due to a shortage of international money; that there are unresolved conflicts of interests among the rich nations as to who shall control the creation of new reserves and, last but not least, that the European bankers are by no means convinced that the United States will in fact put a permanent end to its deficits.

Although there were some useful technical and procedural agreements for further study, nothing was settled because the bankers were asked to find a theoretical solution—which might not need to be applied for a long time—to a problem which was hypothetical, since our deficits are not yet permanently ended.

The other and largely neglected activity of the meeting has been to confront the government and peoples of the world with the grim and dangerous contrast between the advanced nations in the Northern Hemisphere and the underdeveloped countries in the rest of the world.

Canada Included

In the World Bank's masterly treatment of the subject, "the developed countries," which have market economies and are non-Communist, include the United States and Canada in North America, Japan in Asia, the industrialized countries of Western Europe.

The "developing countries" include all of Asia except Japan and the Sino-Soviet bloc, all of Africa except South Africa, all of Latin America and in Southern Europe, Turkey, Yugoslavia, Greece, Spain and Portugal. Leaving out Russia and China, these developing countries include 70 per cent of the people of the world.

In varying degrees they are all in trouble. There is every reason to believe that, without a great change of feeling and policy in the developed nations, the underdeveloped nations face a dismal future. Insofar as they remain weak and disorderly, they will attract the rivalry for influence and power of the great powers.

Although there are many differences among the underdeveloped nations, the one weakness they have in common is that with only rare exceptions—those rich in oil and some minerals—they cannot earn enough by their exports to provide the capital they must have for their own development.

Gap Widening

The developed nations buy about three-quarters of the exports of the developing nations. Since the Korean War, the main trend, with only a few years' exception, has been toward rising prices for manufactured goods and declining prices for raw materials. For many, if not for all, of the developing countries their earnings from exports are not sufficient to keep up with the growth of population. Relatively speaking, the rich are getting richer and the poor are getting poorer.

In secular terms, this growing disparity is the paramount problem of mankind, and it is in the context and environment of this disparity that the problems of war and peace will have to be worked out.

The disparity cannot be overcome by preaching and exhorting the developing countries to pull themselves up by their own boot straps. They cannot and will not do that—certainly not unless they pass through the ordeal of some kind of Stalinist dictatorship.

There is again no good prospect that the terms of trade can be reversed by commodity subsidies and stabilization agreements. The only solution is that the rich countries make available to the poor countries the foreign exchange which they can usefully employ to make themselves self-sufficient. This is estimated to be about $4 to $5 billion a year—more than is now going out to those countries.

Trifling

Considering that the gross national product of the developed countries, not including the Soviet Union, rose to over a trillion dollars ($1,100 billion) in 1964, this increased help is really a trifling amount.

It would, of course, best be raised and transferred collectively, rather than by any one country such as the United States, and in this work the Soviet Union should, as the President suggested, participate.

Unless the richer countries can rouse themselves to such an indispensable action, they should cease to pretend that they really care about peace among men.

FROM NEW YORK

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

Assessing the Papal Visit

UNITED Nations diplomats are seeking to assess the impact of Monday's whirlwind 14-hour visit to New York and the United Nations by Pope Paul VI.

Among its principal results, diplomats and observers list the following:

1. A favorable impression by the head of the Roman Catholic Church on a country which, though it has a Protestant majority, elected a Catholic president in 1960 and kept when he was assassinated three years later.

2. Appointment of a Negro bishop in New Orleans, inclusion of Harlem in the Pope's motorcade, and bold steps toward integration of Catholic churches in the South indicate observers believe, a special effort to embrace non-white Americans in the Catholic faith.

3. A major boost to the prestige and standing of the UN. Catholics who might otherwise be so inclined, will find it more difficult to support anti-UN movements now that Pope Paul has bestowed upon the organization what he called a "solemn moral ratification" and has said the UN "represents the obligatory path of modern civilization and of world peace."

The view that the UN needs to be "perfected" and "adapted" has Papal approval; but the objective of such improvements, he has said, should be "the establishment of a world authority able to act efficaciously on the juridical and political levels."

Contrast to De Gaulle

This view contrasts strikingly, for example, with that of Gen. Charles de Gaulle of France, a devout Catholic, who has referred scornfully to "the so-called United Nations" and whose foreign minister recently said the UN should not try to enforce the peace, since the job was beyond its competence. France has refused, along with Russia, to pay peacekeeping dues.

3. Efforts to seat Red China in the UN have been jolted; the United States, which seeks to bar Peking, has gained an important and influential ally.

The Pope said the UN should strive to "bring back" those who have left—and apparently meaning Indonesia—and unite with "those who do not share" the UN brotherhood—apparently meaning Peking. But he said the latter step should be taken when "those still outside . . . desire and merit the confidence of all," a criterion which few think Peking can meet.

Pope Paul came down hard for what UN people call the "selective" theory of UN membership—the theory that, as the Pontiff put it, admission to the UN grants "recognition of the highest ethical and juridical value . . . an honored international citizenship."

Advocates of Peking argue that, on the contrary, a UN seat is merely a convenient means of establishing diplomatic contact, with no implication of moral or political approval.

Many UN member countries with Catholic majorities now are expected to stand with the United States on the issue, perhaps saving Washington severe diplomatic embarrassment this year. Some had been wavering.

4. President Johnson has succeeded in "riding the Papal coattails on the peace issue," as one observer put it. The President associated himself fully with the Pope's pleas for peace, and Pope Paul co-operated to this end.

The Pontiff appeared pleased that the President had helped make his visit to the New World, the first by a reigning Pope, a high-level affair.

Other State Heads

Vatican circles had sought to encourage simultaneous visits by other heads of state, but only seven—those of Austria, Gambia, Iraq, Ireland, Laos, Luxembourg and Malta—were on hand in addition to Johnson.

There were also certain disappointments in the visit from the UN's point of view.

The Pope's address, while an eloquent state paper, full of grace and felicity, contained few practical suggestions, as to just how peace might be made more effectively in Viet Nam, Kashmir, the Dominican Republic and elsewhere, it was felt.

Some in the UN also had reservations about the Pope's reiteration of Catholic doctrine on birth control—his view that the UN must "multiply bread" for mankind rather than "diminish the number of guests at the banquet of life" by "artificial control of birth."

The UN has tried desperately to "multiply bread" for hundreds of millions of hungry people, but has found its efforts repeatedly wiped out by population growth.

Sincerity

The Pope's plea for peace—"no more war! War never again!"—moved many here by its obvious sincerity and the emotion with which it was delivered.

However, his suggestion that "offensive" weapons, as distinct from "defensive," be allowed to "fall from your hands" was not considered practical.

In the late 1940s and early 1950s, Soviet diplomats frequently proposed that a distinction be made between "offensive" and "defensive" weapons. The United States repeatedly rejected the idea on the ground that it was impossible to determine which were which.

Letters

Letters will be considered for publication only if the writer is clearly identified to the editor, who may print pen names at his discretion. Submissions will be edited and may be condensed. Short letters are favored. None will be returned.

Credit Rod Clark

I would like to express my appreciation as a citizen of this fair city of the beautiful and artistic display of Centennial Square.

Credit for the exceptional and most elegant and attractive design including the fountain, as a well-known fact is given to Mr. Rod Clark.

The work on this project was carefully carried out as designed by very capable men who also are to be congratulated.

Therefore, I trust that the special publication of this outstanding piece of artistry will grace the name of the original designer, Mr. Rod Clark.—E. Ward, 2130 Pentland.

Returns for Service

What value, if any, is given to the fact that persons in hotel and restaurant work are often given money by those they attend to promptly and with courtesy?

The reducing of service personnel is often in fact a hardship on older and sick persons.—Old and Often Ill.

Silver Dollars

The Silver Dollar Association has recently suggested to the prime minister that Canada should mint more silver dollars from Canadian silver, fixing the value under Canada Currency Act, at $2 per ounce, in anticipation of approaching gold value at $40 per ounce.

In 1933 when silver was 28¢ per ounce, the U.S. president delivered a speech urging the initiation of the Canadian silver dollar, which attracted the attention of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, and after considerable correspondence, and following a domestic silver purchasing policy under President Roosevelt, the Canadian silver dollar was minted in 1935.

The price of silver has never since gone so low and has steadily risen.

The intrinsic value of our current silver dollar is only about 78¢ so that its purchasing power abroad would be diminished accordingly, and in effect it is not an honest silver dollar.

This association advocates more silver dollars which have not been debased, minted from Canadian silver, and a campaign to stimulate their use and circulation.—G. V. Pelton, president, Silver Dollar Association, Vancouver.

Simple, Grammar

In a recent issue, you used the correct word "escapers" when referring to two men who had escaped from custody. That showed that at least one of your staff knew the correct word to use. Since then you have slipped back into using the incorrect term "escapees." This is not English, but some sort of jargon. It implies that the escaping had been done to them, as though they had been pushed out by some warder.—Max Enke, 1545 Richmond.

Moscow Chill

New York Times

AN accurate index of the current state of Soviet-American relations was the remark of a United States diplomat in Moscow that "the Russians just don't want to be caught holding hands with us in public." This chilly attitude, born of tensions over Viet Nam has produced Soviet harassment of the American architectural exhibition touring that country, and "postponement" of some other scheduled cultural exchange events, including the planned showing of "Hello, Dolly" in Moscow and Leningrad.

Happily, these moves—reminiscent of the old cold war atmosphere—do not extend to all Soviet-American relationships. Exchanges of students and professors appear to be proceeding as planned. The flight of Gemini 5 has produced many respectful references in the Soviet press to American space prowess, as well as tributes to the personal courage of astronauts Cooper and Conrad. American tourists, bringing dollars, remain welcome visitors in Moscow.

The Russian leaders who would like still further deterioration in relations have been aided, regrettably, by J. Edgar Hoover and several insistent pressure groups of right-wing extremists on the Soviet-American consular agreement. The decision not to press for Senate ratification of the treaty now supplies ammunition for peddlers in Moscow of the tired propaganda line that American foreign policy is not determined by President Johnson but by "fascists" and "imperialists."

Looking Back

From The Times of Oct. 7, 1965:

Ottawa: It is expected here that Australia's determination to continue adding internal rates to the value of goods for duty purposes will result in the discontinuance of the Canada-Australia line. The regulation would force a eastern Canadian companies to ship via New York and the trans-Pacific steamship line would thereby lose nearly all its business. It is expected that the loss of business will compel the company to give three months' notice ending the Canada-Australia contract. But it is possible a new service could be established to New Zealand.

Tories Using 'Big Gun' To Immobilize Sharp

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA—Dale Campbell, the president of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada, is seeking election to Parliament in Toronto.

Even if he loses, as the chances are he will, Mr. Campbell may do more for his party and leader than many a Tory candidate who wins. The reason is that he is running in Toronto—Eglinton—against the minister of trade and commerce, Mitchell Sharp. Mr. Sharp is the Liberal government's top wheat salesman. He enormously one-upped the former Tory agriculture minister, Alvin Hamilton, by retaining the Chinese market for Canadian wheat that Mr. Hamilton pioneered, and by topping Chinese sales with even larger sales to Russia.

Liberal election strategy would seem to call for Mr. Sharp to spend much of his time stumping the Prairies in support of Liberal candidates there. But Conservative strategy is to keep Mr. Sharp so busy trying to get re-elected in Toronto-Eglinton that he won't have much time to woo the Prairie vote. And so Mr. Campbell, one of the Tory party's "big guns," was wheeled up to immobilize Mr. Sharp.

Mr. Campbell's hopes in Eglinton are not exactly forlorn. It's an old Tory riding that has gone Liberal only twice since it was established in 1904, so Mr. Sharp cannot laugh off his challenge.

Moreover, Mr. Campbell is not playing simply to tie down the Tories' wheat salesman; he's playing to win. At 45 he is a quiet-spoken man with incisive manner. He has been actively engaged in the organizational side of politics since his college days—when incidentally, he was a Liberal, and a protégé of the then premier of New Brunswick, John B. McNair. For more than a year now Mr. Campbell has been among the "also-mentioned" for the party leadership. After a run-through of Eglinton, Rees, Roberts, Robin and Stanfield, Campbell is usually included as the low man on the totem pole. He has not made his hopes to succeed John Diefenbaker too obvious, but those who know him well say there is no doubt that is his aim.

If he succeeds in defeating Mr. Sharp in Eglinton, he will acquire a giant-killer image that will advance him up the Tory totem pole.

Meanwhile, Mr. Sharp, who might be barnstorming the west with profit to his party, is spending half of every week in Eglinton, and much of his remaining time in Ottawa. He will make his first election trip to Saskatchewan Oct. 21 and 22. The following week he will be briefly in Alberta and then in Manitoba for two days.

Early expectations that the campaign would feature a struggle of titans, Hamilton against Sharp, across the three wheat provinces are thus not materializing.

This may be partly a reflection of Liberal realism: the Tories took 41 of the Prairies' 48 seats in 1963 and the Grits only three. In spite of Mr. Sharp's wheat sales the Liberal planners look for only modest Prairie gains.

Whether intensive efforts in the west by Mr. Sharp would make any great difference is problematical, given other election factors such as the Prairies' loyalty to John Diefenbaker and the unfulfilled Liberal promise of $2 wheat. But by forcing Mr. Sharp to extend himself in Eglinton, Mr. Campbell is helping keep the Prairies Tory, which is basic to Mr. Diefenbaker's hopes of returning to power.

Murres Drifting on Glassy Sea Add Charm to October Scene

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

Through the smoky haze of early October the murres resemble sea-birds in a Japanese print. They drift or paddle aimlessly on the glassy surface, usually some distance from shore and often apart from other birds. Their querulous cry "que-ah, que-ah, que-ah" adds much to the atmosphere that prevails along the tidelines at this time of year.

Murres are considerably larger than guillemots which are also on the scene at this time and they have a proportionately longer beak. Differences in plumage patterns, however, are more marked: the murre has black on the top of the head extending down the back of the neck onto the top of the back. The remainder is a contrasting white. A black line from the eye onto the white cheek is most distinctive.

The overall appearance and color is reminiscent of a penguin and the similarity is even more marked when the murre is on land because it has an upright stance that is surprisingly penguin-like. The erect carriage is due to the rearward position of the legs—a structural adaptation conducive to manoeuvrability in water but not on land.

During the summer murres are absent from our local fishing areas. They take off sometime in late spring for breeding grounds along the open coastline. The known nesting sites nearest southern Vancouver Island are in the vicinity of Cape Flattery, so it is presumed that our birds originate there. Similar habitats are found at several places to the north along the west coast of Vancouver Island but, as yet, no breeding birds have been observed south of Cape Scott.

Murres prefer steep-walled cliffs facing the sea as breeding territory. Here the birds select narrow rocky ledges on which to lay the single egg which each pair incubates. Favored sites are those from which the birds can launch themselves in a falling line of flight over the sea, enabling them to gain flying speed before striking the water.

No actual nest is built; the egg is simply laid on the bare rock or whatever relatively flat surface is available. It is unusually large considering the size of the bird that produces it and is decidedly top-shaped. The tapered form is said to be a device to prevent the egg from rolling off the ledge into the sea; when disturbed it merely rotates in a tight circle well within the boundary of the nest-site.

At one time murre eggs were highly regarded as human food and breeding colonies were exploited as a source of supply. The best-known eggging grounds on the Pacific coast were on islands not far from the Golden Gate lead-in into San Francisco Bay. During the 1800s a small industry flourished here, supplying the local market with murre eggs in fantastic numbers and at a pretty profit. Eventually the government had to step in by closing the breeding islands to such exploitation to save the birds from extermination and it was many years before the population built up again.

Murre eggs are still gathered for food but only by natives for their own use. Aleuts living on the Pribilof Islands in the Bering Sea visit local rookeries for a feed of eggs usually each year. At least two trips are necessary. On the first visit all the eggs within a marked area are removed and destroyed. When the boatmen return a few days later they are assured their take will be fresh if gathered from the same area.

So far the only known nesting colonies of the murre in British Columbia are on Triangle Island, some miles northwest of Cape Scott at the northern end of Vancouver Island. Other breeding populations may be discovered when our coastline becomes better known to biologists.

The College Sorority Culture Combines Primitive Customs

By GERALD GRANT

Among the Bontok people in the Philippines, young marriageable girls are kept in a special house called the olag, where lovers call.

The Ekoi of Nigeria, who like their women fat, send them away to be specially fattened for marriage.

The inhabitants of the Canary Islands pack their daughters off to "convents" where old women teach them the special skills and mysteries that a young wife needs to know.

In North America, however, the olag, fattening-house and convent are rolled into one institution: the college sorority.

To Marry Rich

According to John Finley Scott, a sociologist at the University of California, the college sorority is one of the principal instruments created by the middle class to make sure its daughters marry the right man.

In an article in Trans-Action, a journal of the social sciences published by Washington University in St. Louis, Scott writes: "Through the sorority, the elders of family, class, ethnic and religious communities can continue to exert remote control over the marital arrangements of their young girls."

With academic tongue in cheek, he continues, "The great danger of the public campus is that young girls, however properly reared, are likely to fall in love and... love is a potentially random factor, with no regard for class boundaries. The only practical way to control love is to control the type of young men a girl is likely to encounter. Sororities fulfill this function by introducing sisters only to selected boys, says Scott.

Each sorority has dating relations with one or more fraternities, matched rather nicely to the sorority on the basis of ethnicity and/or class," the sociologist observes.

"The sorority's frantically busy schedule of parties, teas, meetings, skits and exchanges keeps the sisters so occupied they have no opportunity to meet men outside the channels the sorority provides."

But dating itself, along carefully constructed lines, is only a preliminary event. "Dating

Famous Last Words
John Morton (1734 - 1777)
This Pennsylvania signer of the Declaration of Independence was ostracized by relatives and friends who disapproved of it. His dying words were: "Tell them that they will live to see the hour when they shall acknowledge it to have been the most glorious service that I ever rendered to my country."

must lead to pinning, pinning to engagement, engagement to marriage. In sorority culture, all dating is viewed as movement toward marriage," the professor concludes.

Such a great ritual is made of pinning, performed after dinner in the presence of all the sorority sisters, that it is difficult for either partner to withdraw, Scott believes.

Engaged Faster

College newspapers record the successes of sorority girls, who get engaged faster than non-members and appear to be marrying more highly-ranked men, says Scott.

But like the olag, which is deteriorating under the attacks of missionaries, sorority culture is changing.

Neither sororities nor fraternities are now in the pink of health, Scott asserted. College administrations are no longer as hospitable toward them and are now providing housing superior to that offered by sororities. Sororities and fraternities occupy a much smaller share of social life on campus with the rise of more varied student groups, he argued.

But the worst blow of all to the sorority system is the effect of increased academic pressures on dating patterns of college men, Scott concluded. Girls who want to catch the man who is going places will not spend hours pasting paper flowers on the sorority football float; they will be typing his term paper. (The Washington Post)

Forces Opposing Sukarno Cannot Win While He Survives

By STANLEY KARNOW
The Washington Post

"Anyone who is not totally confused is just very badly informed."

That aphorism invented in Indonesia years ago to describe that country's chronic political and economic chaos, aptly fits the current blur of news from Djakarta.

Reports indicate that an apparent revolt staged by Lieutenant-Colonel Untung, the colorless chief of President Sukarno's palace guard, has been foiled by Defence Minister General Abdul Harris Nasution.

But did Untung act to overthrow Sukarno? Or did he, as claimed, create his short-lived "revolutionary council" to protect Sukarno against a supposed uprising by a group of anonymous generals allegedly backed by the CIA? Was his move a simple power thrust? Or was this whole murky manoeuvre secretly contrived by Sukarno himself to surface his enemies and reinforce his own power?

Whatever the elusive truth of the moment, events point up a central reality about Indonesia.

For years, Sukarno ruled Indonesia's hundred million people, scattered across 3,000 islands, by his genius for balancing a vast, complex diversity of forces. Born under the astrological sign of Gemini, as he liked to explain, he was endowed with the ability to blend Socialists and Communists, Moslems and Christians, Javanese, Sumatrans, Balinese and all the different ethnic, social and political factions that comprise Indonesia.

Signs of Upset

Lately, however, Sukarno's adroit balancing act has begun to show signs of coming apart. And he himself has been most responsible for upsetting the deft, fragile equilibrium he had skillfully achieved.

The initial tilt took place on Aug. 17, 1964, Indonesia's independence day. For his annual speech, Sukarno typically borrowed an Italian phrase of Mussolini's vintage, "Vivere pericoloso" (live dangerously). And he proclaimed his objective to live dangerously by attacking the United States while aligning himself closer to Communist China.

In the year that followed, Sukarno lived up to his vow. With his love for heady sloganeering, he promoted the "New Emergency Forces" of Communist and other ideologically acceptable countries in opposition to the "Old Established Forces," principally the U.S. and Western Europe. He recognized Communist North Viet Nam, lent public support to the Viet Cong and accelerated his threats to "crush Malaysia." Most dramatically, last January, he walked out of the United Nations. Henceforth, he announced Djakarta would be the international centre of anti-imperialism.

A Heretic

Peking was delighted. By any tenet of Chinese Communist doctrine, Sukarno was clearly a heretic. But he fit ideally into China's strategy for keeping the world in turmoil, and within the limits of its ability, Peking rewarded him. Substantial Chinese rice shipments have reached Java thus far this year to alleviate famine conditions in parts of the island. Chinese money financed propaganda trips to Africa this summer by Indonesian diplomats. Chinese scientists have been helping Indonesian research teams. And hardly a day passes without Peking's radio boasting of Chinese-Indonesian unity.

These Chinese gestures had their price tag, however, and Sukarno has been paying for Peking's support. More and more clearly over the past year he has leaned toward Indonesia's Communist Party—with three million members and some 18 million sympathizers, the largest Communist movement outside the Red bloc.

And by various measures recently, Sukarno has sought to satisfy the Communists. He has long prevented such moderate movements as the Moslem Majumi Party and the Socialists from indulging in overt political activity. To appease Communist impatience with any rival left-wing groups, he banned the Partai Murbah, a small "revisionist" Communist Party led by Trade Minister Adam Malik.

Generals Protested

Under Communist influence, too, Sukarno attempted to reduce the size of the army. When his generals protested, he compromised by keeping the army intact but giving it a "civic action" mission. At the same time, however, Sukarno heeded Chinese Communist counsel that the Indonesian armed force be stiffened by political commissars to make it an authentic "people's army." This measure has also been opposed by Indonesia's top brass.

As they observed the Communists gaining strength, Indonesian moderates searched for ways to unify themselves. Last year they took an intricate step by forming an organization entitled the "Body to Support Sukarnoism" (BPS). Its aim was to rally those alarmed by the Communist's rise, and within a few months it attracted widespread support.

The Communists quickly saw the BPS for what it was. Not only did they urge Sukarno to disband it but the Chinese Communist Foreign Minister Chou Yi, on his surprise visit to Djakarta in November, 1964, also reportedly demanded its dissolution. A month later, Sukarno outlawed the BPS to "prevent national disunity."

Along with their alarm at the Communists' growth, many lower ranking army officers have been irritated by Sukarno's policies towards them. In particular, over the past two years, they have opposed a program to retire old soldiers to community development projects in the countryside.

Sections of the army have also been embarrassed by the military failures of the "Crush Malaysia" campaign. Indonesian attempts to infiltrate mainland Malaya amounted to nothing, and Indonesian naval engagements against the British navy were so hopeless as to be farcical.

Economy Grim

Combined with this displeasure large numbers of Indonesians are appalled by their country's grim economic condition—a condition directly attributable to Sukarno's unwillingness to grapple with the challenge of food production. The currency is worthless, prices rise steadily and one of the world's richest lands must import rice to survive.

Despite their discontent, Sukarno's critics have been inhibited from acting against him, for one crucial reason. The overwhelming, fervent religion of Indonesia is nationalism. Sukarno is the embodiment of Indonesian nationalism; its founder, its pope, its voice.

To oppose him is to invite ex-communication. If Colonel Untung's coup was a simple play against Sukarno, therefore, it was probably an individual move, perhaps supported by a few dissatisfied army elements. After all, Sukarno has escaped four previous assassination attempts.

Curiously, however, the man whose political persuasions should pit him most strongly against Sukarno is the man who saved him.

Consistently over the years, Defence Minister Nasution has bridled at Sukarno's buildup of Indonesian Communists. As a military man concerned with modernizing his army, he has dimly viewed the cooling of ties with the United States and the Soviet Union, which can offer Indonesia contemporary equipment, in favor of closer bonds with Peking, which mostly gives Indonesia oratorical stimulation.

Must Wait

Most significantly, however, Nasution realizes that as long as Sukarno lives, no contender for his succession can oppose him openly. Thus as they await Sukarno's death, Nasution and other moderates must swallow their complaints and abide by their president's decisions. Even their anti-Communist gestures must be made subtly lest they seem to contravene Sukarno's desires.

And while the potential successors await Sukarno's death, numbers of students, army officers, religious groups and ordinary citizens will undoubtedly express their unhappiness in eruptions similar to last week's event.

But the major forces within Indonesia can only wait for Sukarno to die. After that, the struggles for power are likely to generate a chaos that makes the present confusion seem orderly.

Winters' Re-Entry Nags Liberal Left

By PETER C. NEWMAN

TORONTO—Ever since Robert Winters unexpectedly announced his return to politics as the Liberal candidate in the Toronto riding of York West, an uneasy feeling has been nagging the left-wing elements of his party.

These progressive activists, who have been dominant in the formulation of policy during Lester Pearson's stewardship, regard Winters as a throwback to that brand of managerial Liberalism against which they rebelled in the reconstruction period between 1958 and 1963.

They fear that once Winters is back in Ottawa, his influ-

Institute of Technology, he was the "chief protégé" of C. D. Howe in the St. Laurent administration. It was Howe who got him into politics. "We need more engineers in this government. You're going to run." And it was Howe who invariably chose Winters to fill in for him at trade and commerce when he had to go out of town. Winters always admired his mentor but he once told me: "I think C. D. missed a bet by not really appreciating how Parliament works. I always found it very salutary to take something and have it approved by Parliament. It's the same feeling as having your board and your shareholders behind you."

Winters greatly impressed Ottawa professionals by cleaning up the patronage-ridden public works department, following his appointment to that portfolio in 1953. One of nine cabinet ministers to fall in the 1957 election, he became the $60,000-a-year, Canadian president of the Rio Tinto Company, a London-based complex founded by the Rothschilds in 1873.

Winters' business success was a surprise. He had been a syndicate experting the Labrador power source at Churchill Falls, as well as a director of more than dozen large Canadian corporations whose assets aggregate well over six billion dollars.

Always very close to Pearson, Winters is one of the few Canadian businessmen who openly campaign for a political party. During the 1958 election, when Winters was officiating at a mill opening at Elliott Lake, Ont., he drew some raised eyebrows by sporting a huge "I Like Mike" button.

During the 1962 and 1963 campaigns he collected Liberal election funds and made a speaking tour of eastern Canada on Pearson's behalf, referring to John Diefenbaker as "a national disease." His most important assignment was to act as an intermediary between Jean Lesage and the Liberal leader in the negotiations that led up to the Quebec premier's public support for the federal party.

Winters has never openly attacked the economic policies of Walter Gordon, although following the finance minister's ill-fated first budget, he did allow himself to remark: "It's inexplicable."

But if both the Liberals and Robert Winters win on Nov. 8, there could be a contest to determine the future direction of Canadian Liberalism, with Walter Gordon and Robert Winters almost certainly on opposing sides.

ROBERT WINTERS

ence will rapidly increase and he will become the man to beat as Pearson's successor, whenever the Liberal leadership falls open.

Feelers Out

Since the party's left-wing ministers are also the Liberals who are fighting hardest in this campaign, they have had no time (and little inclination) to formulate any kind of anti-Winters strategy for Nov. 8. But casual feelers have gone out from some of the new guard Quebec candidates to some of the progressively-minded English-speaking ministers, with the idea that by combining together into a common front, left-of-centre Liberalism can retain control of the party. Both groups apparently see in Winters the first serious challenge of their ascendancy.

Despite such fears, Bob Winters, a big, tanned, entirely uneccentric man who looks like a coloring book executive, is not a hard-bitten right-winger. He's a sort of Eisenhower with brains, an international entrepreneur who believes that the main function of government is to foster economic development. # Bennett Blasts Federal Grants

UBC President Also Attacked On University Fee Increases

Premier W. A. C. Bennett Wednesday blamed everyone but his own administration for this year's higher fees in B.C. universities.

Bomber Pilots Get New Roles

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Air Force will shift almost 1,250 bomber pilots and navigators to new jobs flying transports, fighter planes and reconnaissance jets, it was disclosed today.

The pilots and navigators have been operating B-47 jet bombers which will disappear from the U.S. air fleet by next June.

The action reflects increasing emphasis on airlift and tactical air support and the decreasing importance of the nuclear bomber in U.S. war plans.

The B-47, a six-jet nuclear bomber, became obsolete with the rise in importance of intercontinental ballistic missiles and higher performance bombers. Only 200 are still on duty, compared with a peak of 1,400.

When the B-47s are retired, the United States still will have about 620 eight-jet B-52 heavy bombers and 80 supersonic B-58 bombers in the 1970s.

NO RESPECT

Death Rule Commuting Under Fire

VANCOUVER (CP)—The routine commuting of death sentences in Canada in the past few years has done little to enhance respect for the law, Mr. Justice Craig Munroe said Wednesday night.

The supreme court judge told the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons the death sentence should be abolished only if it offends the conscience of the nation.

"The respect for law is brought to a low point when the death sentence is routinely commuted not on the basis of guilt or innocence and not on the basis of extenuating circumstances but simply on the basis that the federal cabinet ministers of the day do not agree with the law as enacted by Parliament."

Jobless Paid Through Mail Starting Monday

Victorians who receive unemployment insurance will soon be getting it through the mail instead of picking it up at the Unemployment Insurance Commission office.

Starting Monday, all unemployment insurance benefits will be sent by cheque through the mail, Victoria manager George Bevis announced.

Last cash payments were being made today at the branch office, 1039 Johnson St.

The change-over is being made for greater convenience, Mr. Bevis said.

Unemployed person may still make their claims by mail, but will have to make sure information is correct before mailing, as incomplete forms will mean delay in payments.

He told reporters that the Bladen report recommending massive federal aid to Canadian universities was too modest in proposing federal per capita operating grants go to $5 from the present $2.

The premier said he had made this very recommendation to the federal government in 1957 and if it had taken his advice then there would have been no need for the tuition boosts this year.

After slamming "eight years of inaction" by Ottawa, the premier attacked University of B.C. president Dr. John Macdonald on the same score.

He said Dr. Macdonald took a course "unbecoming the president of a great university" last month by trying to blame the provincial government for the fee increases.

(Dr. Macdonald told a student assembly that the provincial government's operating grants to the universities totalled $870,000 less than was requested as a bare minimum and this forced the fees up.)

NO BLANK CHEQUE

"We would never give a blank cheque," Mr. Bennett said. Although it did not receive its full request, the university's provincial grants were raised substantially.

The premier said the university gained $800,000 by its fee increase which, he claimed without divulging the figure, was significantly higher than the government cutback.

He argued this showed UBC planned a hike in fees before the government decision.

Mr. Bennett said he agreed with the Bladen report's conclusion that some fee should be charged for university education but he contended it should be kept to a "modest" sum with bursaries for needy students and scholarships for the brightest ones.

However, he disagreed with the report's fixed formula for federal university assistance, arguing that Ottawa help should be on a percentage basis.

Reforestation Tory Plan

HALIFAX (CP)—A Progressive Conservative government would reforest more than 20,000,000 acres of second-grade land in eastern Canada in the next 10 years if elected Nov. 8, Alvin Hamilton, agriculture minister in the last Conservative government, said Tuesday.

The reforestation program would cost about $2,000,000,000 and could be put into effect only with the co-operation of the provincial departments.

TV Sets Presented At St. Joseph's

Two television sets have been donated to the pediatrics ward of St. Joseph's Hospital.

A gift of the Victoria North Kiwanis Club, they were presented Wednesday to Mrs. H. G. Ingram, president of the St. Joseph's Hospital Children's Association.

They will be added to present facilities in the play therapy room of the pediatrics ward.

Association members, who opened the play therapy room in May, spend two hours daily there with the children, and are known by the youngsters as the "pink ladies" because of their crisp pink uniforms.

The association appreciates her interest and her service.

No Gas for Gunman, Man Shot, Wife Hit

NELSON (CP)—A man died of gunshot wounds, another was shot in the stomach and a woman was pistol whipped early Wednesday in a bizarre shooting that began when a stranger asked for some gasoline.

William George Mahon, 44, of Kaslo later was found dead on an old side road with what RCMP described as self-inflicted gunshot wounds.

Mervin Croston, 23, of Kaslo was shot through his stomach and was in serious condition with a severed spinal cord.

Mrs. Croston suffered head cuts and bruises in a pistol whipping.

Police pieced together this sequel of events:

A stranger knocked on the door of the Croston home in nearby Kaslo at 6 a.m. as Mr. Croston was preparing to go to work and Mrs. Croston was feeding a child.

The stranger asked for some gasoline for his car. Mr. Croston said he had none and the man attacked him, firing a shot through his stomach.

Mrs. Croston grappled with the assailant and was pistol whipped and punched.

Police later discovered Mahon's body on a side road. He was shot through the head.

An inquest that opened Wednesday night was adjourned after viewing of the body.

Labor Told Beer Price Will Increase

Strikebound B.C. breweries are using their millions to force up the price of beer, the president of the B.C. Federation of Labour charged Wednesday night.

Speaking as a delegate to Victoria Labour Council, Al Staley said:

"The brewing companies are trying to force the government to raise the price of beer."

"They're willing to use their millions to force this issue."

"It's not because they can't afford to give you (striking brewery workers) more money."

Pleading for local unions to financially support the striking men, Mr. Staley said the main issue was automation.

LAYOFFS AT 60

"Automation's going to come to all of us eventually. Many men are already being laid off at 60."

This has got to be a national issue... a material issue. We aren't just fighting B.C. companies, but cartels across Canada and the U.S."

Local delegates cheered when George Parkes, spokesman for local brewery workers, announced the men were prepared for a long strike (it is now in its seventh week).

He added that the men are now receiving $30-a-week strike pay.

$890 Stolen From City Home

Theft of $890 in U.S. and Canadian money was reported to police Wednesday by a Victoria man.

The money was taken from a top-dresser drawer in the house of Jack Anderson, 1245 Pandora Avenue.

Taken was $450 in U.S.; $140 in silver, and $300 in Canadian bills.

Two Price-Fix Suits Filed in U.S. Court

CHICAGO (AP) — Two suits seeking $6,339,000 triple damages from six aluminum companies accused of price fixing were filed Wednesday in U.S. district court.

The suits, similar to those filed Friday in New York and Monday in Philadelphia, were brought by the Wisconsin Power and Light Co. and by nine members of the Central and Southwest Association, a utility holding company.

The alleged price fixing, the suits say, took place between June, 1958, and March, 1961. The aluminum companies pleaded no contest to a federal criminal suit on the matter and were fined $50,000 each. Partial settlement also has been made of government civil suits against the firms.

Defendants are the Aluminum Co. of America (Alcoa); Anaconda Wire and Cable Co., a subsidiary of the Anaconda Co.; Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Sales Inc., a subsidiary of Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp.; Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp.; and Reynolds Metal Co.

The plaintiffs claim the defendants sold $70,000,000 of aluminum conductor cable for overhead transmission in 1959. They contend this is 90 per cent of all such sales in the U.S.

The suits say the alleged price fixing was unknown to the plaintiffs until the government brought suit.

Work Only Answer To North Weather

By BOB TRIMBEE

PINE POINT, N.W.T. (CP) — From a vantage point atop a 100-foot tower housing eight ore

bins, construction superintendent Bud Beckett surveyed a compact group of buildings that enclose the nerve centre of a multi-million-dollar lead-zinc development.

"The cold has not been a problem for us because we planned for it," he said as he scanned the 1,300-by-1,600-foot site where Pine Point Mines Ltd. is completing work on a 5,000-ton concentrator.

"We lost only 1½ days because of weather and that was when we had a blizzard with 100-mile-an-hour winds in September, 1964.

"Despite the 40-below we get in winter we continued to work two shifts each day. Some of the outside work was slow the first winter because men had to come in often to get warm, but the job kept moving ahead and we'll hit our completion target of late October or early November."

As the construction boss spoke, 25-ton diesel trucks roared down an oil-coated road nearby carrying tons of high-grade ore to a railway loading ramp a short distance from the mill site.

NO PERMAFROST

The pits, where ore is clawed from the ground by 150-ton shovels, can be seen from the rooftop to the west and north and a modern townsite is visible about two miles west of the mill.

For Mr. Beckett, 39, a native of Kinley, Sask., the scene is as familiar as his own face. Assistant superintendent of construction for Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada Ltd., he has been on loan to subsidiaries developing the rich lead-zinc properties 500 miles north of Edmonton.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Freight Rate Discontent Boils

By JIM HUME
Times Business Editor

Back at the typewriter after a few days trekking around the multi-colored interior of British Columbia.

The East Kootenays are bubbling with a rumble that Crows Nest Industries Ltd. are getting a little tired of paying the CPR high freight rates to transport coal.

With two million ton a year contract with Japan in the offing, the concern of company officials is understandable for the contract will be won or lost on the freight cost factor.

The present rate makes it virtually impossible for Crows Nest to enter a reasonable bid for the Japanese market, but it has not yet given up hope of finding a way around the present impasse.

Tomorrow W. R. Prentice, vice-president of Crows Nest, leaves for Japan and a series of talks with officials of Nippon Kokan Kaisha Kaisha, a giant steel producer, to see if he can't land the contract which would start at two million tons a year and go up from there.

In the meantime talks with CPR continue on an effort to find a way of reducing the crippling freight rates.

At the present time Crows Nest competes on the Japanese market only because the federal government subsidizes freight operations to enable mining companies to get their product to tidewater at reasonable cost.

COAL EXPORTS

The snag with this arrangement is that the subsidy is paid only on a maximum of 800,000 tons of coking coal exports a year.

So anxious is Crows Nest to get the $18 million Japanese contract that it is prepared to invest several million dollars to purchase its own freight cars, thus clearing the way for 60-70 car trains to move at one time over CPR tracks with the railway company providing locomotives to haul the loads.

REDUCED COSTS

If current discussions between the coal company and the railway break down there is a second alternative whereby Crows Nest could get their coal to tidewater.

No Challenges On CPR Case

VANCOUVER (CP) — There were no challenges when the Canadian Pacific Railway outlined its case to discontinue its trans-continental passenger train The Dominion.

Five CPR witnesses appeared before the three-man Board of Transport commissioners.

The board is reserving decision on the company's application until a series of hearings across Canada have been completed.

The CPR says it is losing money on The Dominion—a deficit of $9,673,932 in 1964, and a $5,023,924 loss for the first seven months of 1965.

It also argues that 10 diesel locomotives now used on The Dominion service are needed to haul wheat.

water at greatly reduced costs. Unfortunately this alternative would see Canada lose the entire movement of coal between the East Kootenays and Vancouver. It would also see Vancouver lose a hefty slice of business to settle.

It is sometimes forgotten that Crows Nest holds a charter to operate a railroad. It is also sometimes forgotten that the same company has a right of way for a rail-spur from Fernie to the Montana border.

Company officials are not anxious to get into the railroad business, but they may have to if they wish to stay alive.

Surveys have already been made of the cost of building the Canada-U.S. rail-spur (estimated at $10 million) and the comparative costs of freighting coal to tidewater via the Great Northern Railway system.

LONG PERIOD

Even with a $10 million tab on the spur-building program, Crows Nest officials are certain it would be more economical to ship their coal this way over a long period rather than continue to pay freight rates that price them out of the Japanese market.

They are anxious that their railroading plans and ambitions be not interpreted as a big stick with which to threaten the CPR.

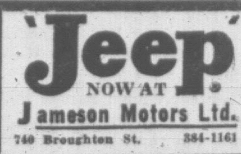

"It is just that we have to find a way of getting our coal to tidewater at competitive prices," a spokesman for the company told me earlier this week. "We either find that way via existing Canadian railway systems or we shall have to build our own spur down to the Montana border."

Great Northern has already assured Crows Nest that if the spur is built and Great Northern facilities used, it will build a bulk-loading terminal at the coast. The site has not been selected, but it is likely that it would be in the vicinity of Seattle or Tacoma.

The final decisions have not yet to be made but CPR thinking was apparently made clear this week. It upped the per ton freight rate 15 cents from $5.13 to $5.28.

"In the issue of the Victoria Observer dated October 26, 1964 in an article headed 'Victoria union leaders slapped in face—told U.S. fixes wage rates' with a sub-heading 'Inside Story of Negotiations which led to Latest Demands' certain allegations were made against William Cameron, a business agent at the time of publication, for the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, Local 452 that Mr. Cameron was a U.S. headquarters representative and had improperly interfered in negotiations between the Carpenters Union and the Victoria Builders' Association.

The Victoria Observer acknowledges that there was no foundation for any of the allegations and unreservedly withdraws all imputations made upon the character and conduct of Mr. Cameron. The Victoria Observer apologises to Mr. Cameron for inconvenience which may have been caused to him."

Trick-Treating Right Or Wrong On Sabbath?

Fireworks and trick-or-treating are out of place on the Sabbath, Rev. Samuel J. Parsons, chairman of the United Church Victoria presbytery, said Wednesday.

Other churchmen agreed that because Halloween falls on a Sunday this year, the traditional fun night should be celebrated the night before, Oct. 30.

They were asked to comment on a Burnaby's cleric's contention Halloween should be held on schedule Oct. 31.

Rev. W. J. Bishop of St. John the Divine Anglican Church on the mainland said a lot of good work comes out of Halloween with collections and drives for charitable organizations.

He saw no reason why it couldn't be held on a Sunday.

Dr. Parsons agreed about the charitable work but frowned on the fireworks and hi-jinks which accompany the night.

"MORE FUN"

"The youngsters will have more fun on a Saturday night," he said.

In Vancouver, Mayor Bill Rathie said Saturday would be more suitable for Halloween celebrations, but city council did not want to become involved in a dispute over fireworks on the Sabbath.

Reeve Alan Emmott of Burnaby agreed.

UA Gives Excellence Award

Scott Plastics Ltd., 21 Erie St., is the second Victoria firm to win the United Appeal's Award of Excellence for an average contribution of $15.60 from all 10 of its employees.

The award is the highest of several given to employee groups showing "outstanding citizenship" in their response to the Community Chest's annual fund drive.

Staff of McCall Bros. received the first 1965 Award for per capita gifts of $27.38 from each employee.

Plaque awards for the seventh consecutive time went to employees of Harbord Insurance Ltd. and Yarrows Ltd.

PLAQUES

Other plaques, with number of times won in brackets, went to Brown Bros. Agencies Ltd. (4); district taxation office (1); McKay-Cormack Ltd. (2); Montreal Trust Co. (2); George H. Birnie Ltd. (5); F. N. Cabell Ltd. (3); and Yorkshire and Canadian Trust Ltd. (6).

Citations for groups with less than 10 employees went to four organizations. They are: audit services branch, department of finance, emergency welfare service division, department of national health and welfare; Nesbitt Thomson and Co. and Cunningham Drug Stores Ltd., 1955 Fort St.

An achievement award was given the office staff of the purchasing agent, department of mines and technical surveys.

$230,000 Outlay On Fish Survival

Mamellian, Bloedel and Powell River Limited is spending another $230,000 on fish survival and propagation in the Alberni Valley, the company's general manager of the Alberni area, J. R. Forrest, announced Wednesday.

A 540-foot extension to the effluent flume at the company's pulp and paper mill at Port Alberni has been completed at a cost of $170,000.

At the Stamp River outlet of Great Central Lake, the company is installing an improved water-flow control system, at a cost of $60,000.

Both projects are being carried out in co-operation with the federal department of fisheries.

MAYBE IT'S CHEAPER BUT NOT PRETTIER!

Automation is catching up to civilian personnel in Victoria city police department.

Police commissioners Wednesday approved $12.50 per month rental of a document copying machine that Chief J. F. Gregory said "almost takes the place of another girl."

He said the machine could be used for copying any document, including "wanted" circulars having photographs of persons taken from criminal records for distribution to other police departments.

FRENZIED NEGROES AFTER TRAIN CRASH

He Threw His Hands Up ... It Was the End

DURBAN (Reuters)—A white railroad employee told from his hospital bed how he watched frenzied Negroes kill his friend minutes after the worst train crash in South African history killed 81 Negroes and injured 130 Monday night.

Frans Jagles, 34-year-old station foreman, was the only white passenger aboard the packed suburban train, part of which was derailed as it approached Effingham Road junction.

Then, Jagles, signalman Wally Hartsliel, running from his signal box to help, a group of Negroes started screaming and rushed at Hartsliel.

"I looked around. All around me were bodies. A chap who had his head cut off was lying next to me, and not far from me a woman sat on a rail holding half the body of her child."

"They were kicking and hitting. I just saw Wally throw his hands up and I knew it was the end."

Jagles said he managed to get clear of the wreckage and set out on a nightmare crawl through undergrowth to escape the crowd. He reached the office of a quarry about 400 yards away, crawling all the way.

A Negro night watchman at the quarry telephoned for police and ambulances.

GIVING AWAY CHICKENS

BEGGIO EMILIA, Italy (AP)—Poultry raisers are flagging down passing motorists, and giving them a free chicken. The farmers said it is their way of calling attention to 16,000 times in the poultry business. Industrialization of poultry production in the region has created a surplus and the farmers want something done about it. So, they have given away hundreds of chickens in the campaign.

FIRING AWAY in opening World Series game is Minnesota right-hander Jim Grant, who went all the way in 8-2 victory over Los Angeles Dodgers.

No More Talk About Taking Four Straight

By JOE REICHLER

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Nobody is talking about four straight anymore. Not even Minnesota Twins, who battered Don Drysdale and beat favored Los Angeles Dodgers 8-2 to draw first World Series blood.

The Dodgers had really believed they could knock off the American League champions in four straight. Today, somewhat subdued after having their 23-game winning streak—handcuffed by a 10-0 loss to the Twins—broken, they were left-handed star, to give them an even break in the two games here.

Sam Mele, the Twins' manager, never had any illusions about a four-game sweep. Even after having won the first one, Sam still contained his optimism.

SUPERSTITION BRINGS IT'S OWN REWARD

CANANDAIGUA, N.Y. (AP)—To the superstition of a black cat, they resulted in a $13,277 twin-double payoff.

The couple said they picked the numbers, which totalled 13, from the licence plate of an automobile that had stopped in front of their car to avoid hitting a black cat.

Ross and Bird Rally Winners

TORONTO (CP)—John Bird and Klaus Ross, both of Toronto, have been officially declared winners of the 1965 Shell 4,000 car rally, the organizers announced Wednesday.

The ruling, by a special board of stewards appointed by the Royal Automobile Club of England, finally settled a dispute between the team of Bird and Ross and the team of John Wilson of Waterloo, Ont., and Paul MacLennan of Toronto, as to who actually won the 1965 Montreal-to-Vancouver Shell 4,000, held April 24 to 30.

Wilson and MacLennan, driving a Ford Mustang, were declared winners of the rally when it finished in Vancouver despite a protest by Bird who claimed he and his co-driver Ross, in a Volvo, had been erroneously assessed 10 points. The assessment moved Bird and Ross to third place from first.

Out of Woods for Shave and Series

RUSSELL SPRINGS, Ky. (AP)—Tom Stacy chugged into town Wednesday in his 35-year-old car for his vacation, a routine that's known by heart in Russell Springs.

It's world series time. That's about the only thing that lures the 77-year-old Stacy from his three-room log cabin near Jabez overlooking Lake Cumberland.

Stacy lives a simple life by choice. For 30 years, he's come to town every fall to listen to the series by radio or watch it on television.

"The city met him with the fire truck one year and made quite a thing of it," recalled businessman Charles Aaron, a frequent host.

The 1,200 townspeople can almost tell time by Stacy's habits.

First, there's a trip to the barber shop for a haircut and to get the full beard he's grown since the last series shaved off. Then he checks in at a rooming house, looks for a friend with a spare chair around the TV set, and stays in town until the series is over.

"Tom knows every baseball player in both leagues and their batting average," a friend said. "One year when Milwaukee was in the series, he watched Hank Aaron talk to a coach before coming to bat and said 'I'll bet 20 to 1 he hits a home run.'"

"Wonder what the coach is saying," some one remarked. "He's telling Aaron where to hit it," Tom replied.

When Aaron crashed a homer, Stacy wouldn't pick up his winnings.

"I hate to take that. He hit the ball 50 feet from where the

NO SIGN OF DESPAIR

'I Never Give Up'—Alston's Hot Retort

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The atmosphere was not exactly bubbling with joy but there was no air of despair in the Los Angeles Dodgers' dressing room after their 8-2 series loss to Minnesota Wednesday.

"We got 10 hits, they got 10 hits, but theirs came in a bunch and scored runs. Ours didn't," said a quiet-talking Dodger manager, Walter Alston.

Alston said perhaps he left his starter, Don Drysdale, in the game too long—or at least longer than he would some of his other pitchers.

"I thought Drysdale had good stuff, but his command was not so good, which is understandable since he hadn't pitched since last Thursday."

Had he "given up" when he brought in his ace relief hurler, Ron Perransoki, in the seventh with the Dodgers trailing, 8-1?

The query brought the only look of annoyance from Alston during the post-game discussion.

"I never give up," he said coldly.

'I Pitched Terrible Game' Claims Extrovert Grant

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The Mudcat and his Kittens ought to do big all over the country this year—except in Los Angeles.

The Mudcat is the name given Jim Grant, Minnesota's ace right-hander, who Wednesday pitched the Twins to an 8-2 first-game World Series victory over Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Kittens are the other members of Grant's musical quartet which will make the bebop circuit this fall and winter. "We're a real jive group," said Mudcat. "All the Kittens play instruments. Not the Mudcat. I sing and dance."

"I sing rhythm in blues, pop, and ballads mostly. A little rock 'n' roll, too. We go over very big."

Mudcat said he got his nickname in 1954, his first year in organized baseball.

"They thought I came from Mississippi," he said. "People, it seems, connect mudcats with Mississippi. The only trouble is I've never been in Mississippi. I come from Florida."

WAS HUMBLE

An extrovert, the 30-year-old Grant rarely allows modesty to stand in his way. So it was a surprise when the strong-armed right-hander appeared humble over his 10-hit performance. He was so humble, he was almost apologetic.

"I think I pitched a terrible game," he said. "I was behind the hitters all afternoon. I didn't have a change-up, and my slow curve wasn't working at all. They are among my better pitches but for some reason I can't explain they didn't come around."

"They hit the ball good, but they hit them at somebody," Grant said. "I didn't have my curve ball all day. I didn't throw over 15 curves, and I didn't throw a good one until the ninth inning."

Grant fell behind 1-0 in the second inning when Ron Fairly hit a fast ball for a home run.

STARTED AS INFELDER

But Don Mincher's homer, a 400-foot blast into the right field bleachers, tied the score in the bottom of the second, and the Twins broke it wide open with a six-run assault on right-hander Don Drysdale in the third.

Grant, whose 21-7 record led American League pitchers during the regular season, started out in the Cleveland Indians' organization as an infielder.

He was about to be dropped when Fred Merkle, the scout who signed him, remembered he had once seen Grant pitch and suggested the Indians give him a trial on the mound. Grant has been a pitcher since.

HITS 'LUCKY' HOMER

Zollo Versalles, the spirited Cuban shortstop who rapped a three-run homer in Minnesota's six-run third inning and drove in another run with a single in the sixth, said:

"I was lucky to hit the home run and I was lucky to get the base hit."

The Twins' manager, Sam Mele, had only praise for Grant and Versalles.

"If a pitcher can get the batters to hit them right at somebody," Mele said, "then he's a great pitcher. I never talked to Grant at all during the game."

Versalles, Mele said, "stroked one when we had to have it. He's made the great plays for us all year."

Mele singled out a third Twins hero, second baseman Frank Quilici.

"He's all over the place," Mele said of the rookie infielder.

"No, I wasn't surprised he got the two hits. He usually hits the ball some place; he doesn't strike out much."

TIME OUT

Car Fractures Brumel's Leg

MOSCOW (UPI)—Valery Brumel, Russia's world record high jumper, suffered a multiple fracture of his right leg in a traffic accident Wednesday, the official Tass news agency announced today.

Tass said the 24-year-old athlete was "knocked down by a car while riding on a motorcycle in Moscow." He was operated on today.

Reliable sources said his leg was broken in three places—two simple breaks between knee and ankle and a complicated fracture near the ankle.

The injury eliminates Brumel from the Russian championship track and field meet which opens in a few days in Alma Ata. Reliable sources quoted doctors as saying it may have further effects on his career.

George Likes 'Cream' With His Racing

Around the racetrack George Harknett Jr. is one of the "nice guys."

He doesn't pull out his cheque book and halter horses willy nilly.

He doesn't make excuses, nor tear out his hair, nor roar and stomp when one of his horses loses.

He has in the jingo of racing a "good hold" on his emotions.

He, his father George Sr. and publicist Harry Filion run under the nom de plume of the Colwood Stables. They have two broodmares, Chick's Last and Markendell. They match the mares with good stallions and do their best.

Colwood Stables had a fine season in '64 but dived in '65. Only Harlion (four wins) has kept them from pulling up stumps and declaring.

Anna-Cha-Ta, a promising two-year-old, hurt herself early.

Fuel Barish, an outstanding looking three-year-old, broke down. Chickrin won one race by seven lengths. Then like thoroughbred fillies are prone to do, she became kooky and in dressage.

That left Devonshire Cream. She won five races last year, including a division of the Island Derby, and $4,537 purse monies. There were no strong denials from the Harknetts when Devonshire Cream was referred to as the finest filly bred on Vancouver Island.

There are few races written for fillies and mares in B.C. for the simple reason there are so few of them who could be called outstanding.

All summer long Devonshire Cream has been bucking colts and geldings and standing in their winning shadows. Bad post positions and racing luck militated against her.

"I could have run her for a price," George Jr. was saying at Sandown Wednesday, "but I want to breed her. I've never had a filly this good and I didn't want to lose her."

Before the seventh race, Harknett watched Devonshire Cream on parade and said, "If she doesn't win today, that'll be all for her this year." Then he scanned the program, ticked off This Is True, claimed for $6,250 last winter at Santa Anita, and Princess Vega, a Kentucky bluebird, and said: "Even if she gets beat, it won't be any disgrace to lose to those two." Horse players present at

GEORGE HARKNETT

Sandown will attest to the fact that Devonshire Cream won't be going to the farm yet. She ran around the field, was on the outside of three horses at the turn, and turned in the fastest 6 1/2 furlongs of the day—1:20.2.

She was, like her soft-spoken fan-club president George Jr., impressive.

Said he after the pictures were taken and his pulse rate had returned to normal: "I may race her one more year. Then she'll be bred. I think she has the stuff to produce. I'm like anybody else in the business. I'd like to come up with one really good horse, a George Royal."

Sombody forgot to tell Sandy Hucul the Western Hockey League season doesn't start until Oct. 15.

For Sandy, the season apparently started the day Victoria Maple Leafs checked into training camp at Memorial Arena.

Reporting at an even 200 pounds, four below his playing weight of last winter, big Sandy promptly proceeded to show one and all that he was planning to have a big season.

From the time coach Frank Mario dropped the puck for the first scrimmage session, Hucul has been tackling his chores with rare exuberance. Bruises under pads worn by his mates are colorful proof that trying to carry a puck past Sandy is an invitation for a thumping.

It's not that the ox-strong defenceman has become vindictive as he prepares for his 11th professional season. In games or in practice, he has always treated his hockey toil like just another day's work. Sandy figures that

Sandy's Talking More These Days

Whatever the reasons, Sandy is moving as well as he ever did during training and his antics have the men he played with last season predicting that the dour defenceman will be one of the brightest Leafs in the battles ahead.

Perhaps the most conclusive indication of enthusiasm comes from Sandy himself.

Bud Gave It a Try But Hap Says Nix

Well, it was a nice try, Bud. Norman "Bud" Poile claimed in Edmonton Wednesday that Boston Bruins agreed to trade four players for two members of his San Francisco Seals of the Western Hockey League.

New Park Plans Prompt Ottawa To Bid for Game

OTTAWA (CP)—The City of Ottawa may make a bid to have the 1967 Grey Cup game played here.

Mayor Don Reid, a confirmed sports fan, supported the idea of bringing the national pro football game here in 1967 when it was suggested at a meeting of board of control this week.

Controller Murray Heit said Ottawa's new football park would be built during 1967 and would have a seating capacity of 30,000.

The matter is to come up again for discussion later this month.

SPONSORS NEXT?

I'm Boss, Crows Cass—I Can Fire Anybody

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Cassius Clay says he has fired Bundini Brown—merry-faced straight man for Clay's comedy routines and a central figure in the heavyweight champion's entourage.

Clay also says he has considered getting rid of his group of sponsoring millionaires in Louisville when their contract expires in October, 1966.

"I'm the boss and I can fire anybody I want to—my trainer, my wife, anybody," Clay said Wednesday.

The champion already has filed a divorce suit against his wife Sonji on the grounds that she refuses to follow the customs of the Black Muslim sect to which he belongs.

Clay, training here for his Nov. 22 title defence against Hardly had the words dried on paper when Hap Emms, general manager of the Bruins, said nix, nein and no thanks.

Poile claimed that if the Seals' George Swarbrick made the Bruins, another Seal would be sent to Boston in exchange for four Bruins.

"There's no such deal," Emms snapped. "Swarbrick is here on a loan basis. If he doesn't make the Bruins, he's going back to 'Frisco."

CANUCKS TIED

Elsewhere on the hockey grapefruit circuit, Vancouver Canucks were held to a 4-4 tie by Nelson Maple Leafs in the Kootenay city. General manager Max McNab said Canucks had never been beaten or tied by an amateur team.

Poile's Seals swamped Los Angeles Blades 8-4 in another contest.

At Sept-Des, Que., Montreal Canadiens defeated Houston Apollos of the Central League 6-2. Among the Montreal scorers was Claude Larose, whose last goal came in February.

TOTEMS HERE SATURDAY

"He's come to play this year," added Houle. "It looks as if the big bear is going to be real growly."

Seattle Totems will be the next WHL club to find out just how "growly" Sandy is going to be. Totems will be at Memorial Arena Saturday night at 8:30 for an exhibition tussle with the Leafs.

Hoping to get a good crowd out to see the new edition of the Leafs, Houle has scaled all theatre-style seats at $2. Others will be $1 with students and pensioners paying half price for all seats.

Mount Douglas Trips Champs

Mount Douglas has given the Inter-High School Senior Soccer League a new look.

The Mount Douglas athletes performed the face-lifting by springing an upset Wednesday and handing Oak Bay its first defeat of the season.

Oak Bay, the defending provincial champion, had its three-game winning streak snapped when Peter Duncan broke away in the second half to fire the only goal of the game.

Victoria High took advantage of the Oak Bay defeat to climb into a tie for first place. The Vics did it in convincing fashion, drubbing Esquimalt 4-0.

In Wednesday's third match, Claremont got its first point of the season by battling to a scoreless draw with Mount View.

Claremont's second division club did a little better, tripping Mount View 3-1.

At Esquimalt, goals by Rick Couch and Cliff Ridley gave Vic High a 2-0 lead at the half. Couch and Palle Poulsen wrapped things up for the Vics in the second half.

EXTEND SCHOOL LIFE

Educator Urges Course Changes

By BOB DONAHUE
Times Education Reporter

VANCOUVER—A massive re-vamping of school courses is needed, B.C. school trustees were told here Wednesday.

"In our present courses of study we have organized material into some sort of sequence without giving due thought as to the way in which children develop or whether it is in tune with our times," said Dr. J. R. H. Morgan, director of the Ontario Curriculum Institute.

"It is only beginning to dawn on us that the process of learning is just as important as the content of what is learned."

Dr. Morgan said the skeleton of the present curriculum will likely remain the same in the future.

"But what we are coming at now is the change occurring within the subjects themselves and the slowness with which curriculum buildings have overtaken or failed to overtake these changes."

CREATIVE ARTS

"Creativity and the creative arts offer perhaps the only solution to the coming increase in leisure time because of automation."

Dr. Morgan said in the field of technical education "we must concentrate not on doing better those things we have always done, but on turning our wits to find those things that should be done differently."

MEET DEMANDS

"The whole matter is greatly vexed by the necessity of trying to foresee what type of technical education will enable graduates of the next couple of decades to measure up to the demands placed upon them."

"In my view," said Dr. Morgan, "part of the answer will be found in a greatly extended school life, interspersed with periods of work experience and augmented by an increasing flow of adult persons back to school for sabbatical months or years."

He said as we face the bewildering prospect of automated technology and new patterns of work and leisure the best thinking in the community must be aimed at devising many different patterns of education for youths and adults.

"Let us not lead ourselves up the garden path here by thinking that education alone will solve the problem of cybernation (the computer age)."

"The best education it is possible to devise will always be resisted and rejected by some simply because it demands a degree of self-discipline which they do not possess."

Warning Ignored, Driver Fined $300

A man who failed to heed a police warning not to drive was convicted Wednesday in Saanich court of impaired driving.

Duncan Campbell, 22, of 200 Burnside, was fined $300 and prohibited from driving anywhere in Canada for six months.

Police said they stopped him early in the morning of Sept. 12 after he was speeding on Douglas and Boleskin.

The patrol car approached 80 mph, in an effort to catch him.

The accused's auto was abandoned at Tillicum and Gorge Rd. and he was taken home by police and told he would be charged with careless driving.

Police told him they were "giving him a break" not charging him with impairment.

He said in evidence he consumed three glasses of punch and three drinks of rye at a wedding party.

His mother testified she wanted to recover the abandoned auto because she was worried about what his father would say when the car was not in the driveway when he got up.

So Campbell drove his mother

Chamberlain Son Dies

MALMESBURY, England (AP)—Francis Neville Chamberlain, 51, son of the former British prime minister, died at his home near here Wednesday.

Chamberlain, former managing director of a Birmingham firm, making ship's berths and hospital equipment, retired because of ill health five years ago.

LABOUR COUNCIL TOLD

'Discourage Immigration'

Something should be done to discourage the flow of immigration to Canada, a member of Victoria Labor Council suggested Wednesday.

August Gildemeester made the suggestion following a report on the present unemployment situation.

After hearing there is presently five per cent unemployment nationally, Mr. Gildemeester said:

"I fail to see why officials in other countries should be paid to print a rosy picture of the employment situation over here."

"It's time the public was appraised of the situation."

Vice-president Harry Anderson said the figure of five per cent was one of the highest throughout the civilized Western world.

'STUCK IN RUT'

"It's unnecessary," he said. "We seem to be stuck in some sort of rut."

"These figures are too high for a country that's supposed to be as prosperous as Canada."

He added that the unemployment percentage would rise even higher during winter months.

B.C. Federation of Labor president, Al Staley, said: "We have been brainwashed to believe that if we close our eyes to this problem, everything will be alright."

"But it won't. We've got to go after the shorter work day and shorter work week."

"And now's the time to do it."

City Confirms Police Promotions

Four city police promotions were confirmed Wednesday by police commissioners. They were:

Const. B. M. Hayes, to third class effective Sept. 21; Const. Terry L. Toome, to third class effective Oct. 1; Const. R. E. Holder, to second class Oct. 6, and Const. D. R. Hourigan, to third class Oct. 19.

The commission accepted with regret the resignation of Const. Ted Hamer, effective Sept. 30.

ROCKET TESTS SUSPENDED AT MT. FUJI

TOKYO (AP)—The United States today suspended practice firing of Little John rockets in the foothills of Mount Fuji at the request of the Japanese government.

The government asked that the firing, scheduled to resume today, be suspended to avoid clashes with demonstrating farmers.

Nearly 2,000 farmers assembled near the target area with placards saying "American military murderers go home." The farmers want to put the firing range under cultivation.

Merger Study Nearly Done—Bracewell

The study on the possible amalgamation of Esquimalt and View Royal is nearing completion, retired deputy minister of municipal affairs B.C. Bracewell, said today.

Mr. Bracewell said the report will be in the hands of the secretary of the amalgamation commission, Esquimalt municipal engineer John Graeme, "shortly after the Thanksgiving holiday."

He said the report will be dated Oct. 8.

Mr. Bracewell was hired as consultant by View Royal and Esquimalt. He began his work in early August.

One of the main problems is a suitable tax structure for View Royal.

The alternative to a merger would be for View Royal to form a township of its own.

Mountaineer Hurt

NEW DELHI (AP)—Army Maj. H. S. Ahluwalia, one of India's most famous mountaineers, has been badly wounded in the fighting against guerrillas in Kashmir, the defence ministry announced Wednesday.

Ahluwalia, 27, was a member of the Indian team that climbed Mount Everest, the world's highest peak, May 29.

Official Opening Tuesday For Renoyated Police HQ

Official opening of Victoria's renovated police station in Centennial Square has been set for 2.30 p.m. next Tuesday.

Members of the police drill team will line the chief's way to the ceremony, which will be attended by Mayor R. B. Wilson, city council, police commissioners from Victoria and the surrounding municipalities, magistrates, prosecutors, Greater Victoria reeves, and representatives of the RCMP, attorney-general, and the Bar. ## LANTERN FESTIVAL

Colorful Pageant

The Lions are sponsoring the Tigers this year. They're also backing the monkeys, rabbits, dragons, snakes and bears.

The occasion is the 10th annual Lantern Festival to be held by the Victoria Chinatown Lions Club on Saturday, Oct. 16.

The animals, all but the Lions, are part of a Chinese pageant which depicts the 12-year cycle where each animal is supposed to lend its traits to persons born in its year.

The pageant, written by Bessie Tang, will be presented with a cast of 40 in colorful Oriental costumes at Central Junior High School, where the Lantern Festival is held from 1 to 11 p.m. Also at the festival will be a display of 100-year-old paintings. Depicting famous Chinese historical and legendary figures, they are done in 24-karat gold and stand 14 feet high.

Chow mein, chop suey and sweet and sour spareribs will be featured at the Chinese smorgasbord, and fireworks, fortune cookies and almond cake pies will be available at the home-baking stall.

You can discover your fortune through a fortune-teller or by the Chin Chin method, and see your name written on a gold ribbon in Chinese calligraphy.

Other attractions will be stalls for aprons and needles, an auction stall, a white elephant stall and a display of artificial flower arrangements.

Door prizes, with a total value of $175, will be given away. Admission is 50 cents, and the affair will be officially opened at 1 p.m. by the wife of B.C.'s lieutenant-governor, Mrs. George R. Pearkes.

BATTERY of telephones manned by wives of Victoria Kiwanis Club members received $6,000 in bids Wednesday night in six-hour TV auction of goods donated by local merchants.

Items ranged from a kitchen sink to an automobile which sold for $2,500. Money from 230 articles sold will aid Kiwanis projects such as school patrols and homes for the aged.

Free Tuition Badly Needed, Says Dean

Free tuition for all university under-graduate and post-graduate students is badly needed by Canada, a University of Victoria dean said Wednesday.

Dr. F. T. Tyler, who heads the education department, rapped the Bladen-report's stand that fees should be charged on principle.

Only 12 per cent of the nation's population receives university education and free tuition should be offered to raise this low figure, he argued.

Because the matter was of national importance, "there shouldn't be any need for students to put pressure on the education system to eliminate fees," he said.

Scholarships are important but they did not meet the situation fully. Admission to a university should be based entirely on academic qualification.

Dr. Tyler said tuition was free in all four years of university in California, where he taught previously.

MARRIAGE JEOPARDIZED BY LOANS?

(Times Ottawa Bureau)
OTTAWA — Who wants to marry a girl in debt, even if the "girl of his dreams" is involved?

That was the question asked by the Canadian Union of Students Wednesday as they attacked the Bladen Commission report on financing higher education in Canada.

Many high school students are not psychologically attuned to borrowing in the hope they can successfully attain a university degree three to five years later, the students union said.

The union pointed out that the female student in particular is reluctant to take out a series of loans.

"They could possibly jeopardize her prospects for marriage," said the union.

BLADEN REPORT CRITICIZED

Students Press for End to Fees

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Union of Students Wednesday attacked the "18th century attitude" of Dean Vincent Bladen in a protest against his recommendation that university tuition fees be retained as a source of university financing.

"We agree with much of his report on higher education," Richard Good, 22-year-old vice-president of the union, said in an interview.

"But Dean Bladen is like an 18th century capitalist in his appreciation of the problem of university fees for students."

"He must realize we have to cope with problems of society in the 20th century."

The University of Toronto dean told reporters earlier in the day that he realized students would be disappointed with the section of his report urging provinces to "resist popular pressure" for abolition of tuition fees.

Theft Warrant Issued

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Grand theft warrants have been issued in Pasadena and Reno, Nev., against Marguerite Mays, former wife of the San Francisco Giants' Willie Mays, accusing her of taking expensive rings from jewelry stores in each city. The Mays were divorced in 1962.

Mr. Good said he welcomed details acceptable to each province. Prime Minister Pearson's announcement Tuesday at a $10,000,000 annual fund to provide scholarships of up to $1,000 a year for students.

"We're always encouraged to see federal parties advocate more aid to education," he said. "But I hope this is only the start. Much more is required and this is only a token gesture."

He said elimination of all undergraduate tuition fees would cost about $100,000,000 a year, and should be provided by the federal government although a federal-provincial conference would be needed to work out

SPEEDERS BIGGEST PAYERS IN CITY FINES

Speeders paid more than one-third of August traffic fine totals, Chief John F. Gregory told Victoria city police commission Wednesday.

He drew commissioners' attention to the variety of traffic convictions compiled during the month as a means of indicating accident prevalence.

There were 452 cases, speeding over-30 accounting for 128 and over-20 for 55 cases.

Next highest source of convictions was traffic signal violations with 51, and left turn violations numbering 47. There were 31 careless driving cases.

"Most come to our attention as a result of accidents," the chief said.

"With a rash of accidents Tuesday, one near fatal, and with winter coming on, it will behoove the public to be aware of these offences," he added.

Fines brought in a total of $8,505, of which speeders paid $3,315, careless drivers $1,445, signal violations $880, left-turn infractions $370, and minors driving without insurance $400.

BY POLICE COMMISSION

Special Privileges For Doctors Rejected

Doctors must pay parking penalties like everyone else, Victoria city police commissioners said Wednesday.

Dealing with a Victoria Medical Society suggestion that doctors should have special downtown parking privileges, the commission recommended against it on grounds that physicians are responsible people.

The number of instances when a doctor is faced with an emergency in a restricted parking zone are few, Chief John F. Gregory told the board.

In two years as chief, he said, only one instance came to his attention.

That doctor applied to city council for a refund on the fine he paid for leaving his car in a tow-away zone while attending an emergency call.

Commissioners recommended against a refund, partly because the imposition of fines is a court function with which police commission should not interfere.

"I appreciate their problem," the chief said, "but I don't know how we can help them."

He said that B.C. used to have special vehicle licenses for doctor's cars. They were dropped because they made the cars target for drug thieves.

Any similar system of identification would lead to the same problem, he felt.

The mayor said Victoria Medical Society should be reminded there is ample downtown parking now available with privately-operated and parking commission facilities.

Commissioner Carter said this type of privilege would amount to special favors. "This is so often the reason police departments find it so hard to hold their heads up."

SIERRE, Switzerland (Reuters) — Patrick Guinness, half-brother of the Aga Khan, was killed Tuesday when his car hit a tree near the Simpson Pass.

Guinness, 34, son of British banker Lord Guinness, was alone in the vehicle, police said. He was on his way to Italy when the accident occurred in the village of Rarogne.

Teak Tables Give Scandinavian Touch

By Penny Saver

A friend of mine, soon to be married and caught up in all the bustle and fuss of wedding details, at the same time is trying heroically to choose the furniture for her new home.

Since it will be their first, the young couple is naturally as eager and excited as children over a birthday party. Every detail is getting loving care and attention from the bride-to-be along with a lot of painstaking thought to make sure everything will be just to "his" liking.

"It's not the furniture—it's the accessories!" she wailed to me the other day after a discouraging look at what she already had.

Not to worry, I told her, and gave her a list of items I'd found in a downtown store—"big accessories," things that give a house that "finished" look.

All in the modern Scandinavian style, they are as practical as they are attractive.

Small teak tables about two feet in height, three-legged with a top shaped like an artist's palette, have several bonus features: A neat little ashtray slides out of one side and there is a metal magazine rack attached to the table. Although it is meant to serve as just an additional side table, it is actually sturdy enough to sit on. The table sells for $15.

How many times have you needed an extra chair when company comes and it looks as if you will have to seat them on the floor?

An answer is provided in a line of strong, straight-backed chairs of modern design which would be so useful in the kitchen, but are nice enough to place around the dining room table. Priced at $11.95 each, they come in colors of black, white, red or turquoise. Featuring teak seats but black backs and legs, they sell for $12.50 each. They would be perfect to scatter around the house, one or two placed in children's or guest rooms.

Finally, the piece of furniture which people rarely remember when it comes to buying, but which everyone misses when it isn't there—the mirror!

Lovely (I thought they were lovely and I looked into them), teak-framed mirrors in a variety of modern shapes and designs run from $15. Also Scandinavian-made, they are the perfect answer to that blank space on the wall where you don't want a picture, and would also make lovely gifts for newlyweds!

Raising Money to Buy Hall

PENSIONERS COMBINE FORCES FOR MAMMOTH BAZAAR

The "youngest" group of old-age pensioners ever held a bazaar Wednesday afternoon which promises to put their dream of owning the hall on Government Street where they hold their meetings into a complete reality.

The proceeds from the event, $704.35, were gained from the efforts of members of the Old Age Pensioners, No. 1, and the ladies' auxiliary to the OAP alike.

Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, when she opened the affair in the hall, commended the "young-oldsters" and added a few suggestions of her own, on how to make the group organization include all of their own group and many of the younger set—by providing a "listening post" for the pensioners who are unable to move about and attend meetings and befriending youngsters who need the help of older minds.

MEN PITCH IN

The women of the auxiliary weren't alone, responsible for the bazaar—the men, too, pitched in to man the garden stall.

This featured corner convened by J. Westwater, soon wore a sold-out sign as those attending raced to buy everything from huge squashes to little patience plants with their tiny pink blooms.

Down at the end of the hall, a raffle, offering an exquisite hand-knitted baby shawl, convened by Mrs. D. Duncan, competed with Mrs. E. Hawkins and Mrs. L. Hayes, who were in charge of a raffle of a huge doll, completely outfitted with a wardrobe, hand-made by Mrs. Hayes.

Mothers, grandmothers, and even great-grandmothers rushed to the knitting stall, convened by Mrs. R. Renfrew, which featured complete baby layettes, hand-knitted and embroidered by members of the OAP auxiliary.

The younger guests headed, of course, to the candy stall, manned by Mrs. E. Rushton. This stall displayed a number of candy men, with heads of round suckers, arms of jelly candies, and legs made of hard fruit drops.

For older customers who visited the stall, there was a wide variety of jams, jellies and preserves, featuring everything from strawberry jam to bottled plums.

Everyone's favorite, the home

Victoria's cruising waters provide yet another reason for Mr. and Mrs. Sutton's determination to live here. They own a 28-foot sloop and enjoy sailing along the coasts of England and France.

English Visitors Coming Back But Wary of Medicare Schemes

By PAT DUFOUR

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Sutton of Exeter, England, arrived on a two-week holiday this week and fell victim to a disease . . . one that grows steadily among our visitors. They hate to leave!

Unlike many of our visitors, though, Mr. and Mrs. Sutton have come up with a cure. Although they have only two weeks to enjoy their first trip to Canada, they're busy hunting for real estate, determined to pull up roots and settle here.

Says Mrs. Sutton, "We've fallen in love with Victoria. Everyone's so happy and the friendliness is beyond belief."

She continues, "At home, everywhere is so vastly overcrowded that one has to fight to get any place, queue for everything. People are in such a hurry to get ahead that they wear a perpetual mask of tension."

If there's one thing that might mar their Canadian "Eden," the Suttons feel that it would be indiscriminate use of government-financed health schemes.

Mr. Sutton is outspoken on the obstacles encountered in his country's national health program.

"It's no wonder that England has a hard time paying her way these days. We've now made everything free under our health scheme, including doctors' visits and pills. Two months after this came into effect, the number of people 'fashioning in' jumped by the millions."

"Our own doctor's experience is a fine example of the obstacles our medical men face. He was called out at night to see a patient who lived way out in the wilds. The complaint—a bleeding nose! He eventually found the house (the lights were all out) and when the door was opened to him, he was told that they didn't need him, the bleeding had stopped half an hour ago!

"Yet, he had to go. If a doctor refuses to make a call or prescribe medicine—even though he knows he's dealing with a malingering or crank—he runs the risk of being stricken off or given a heavy fine."

Rachel Sutton offers another source of the scheme's high-rising costs. "When visitors come to England, they can take advantage of this program immediately . . . lots of them do. There's no qualifying period as in most health insurance. It's a known fact that women come over from Ireland to have their babies delivered, then return home!"

Mr. Sutton reports that 400 doctors leave the national scheme each year because of gross abuse and frustrations, leaving the country in dire need of home-trained staff.

"Seventy-per-cent of the doctors in our hospitals are black. Our own men are giving up the struggle."

If this hard-hitting criticism makes Mr. Sutton appear oblivious to his country's needs, it's misleading. His contribution has been enormous.

I heard part of the story from Gray Campbell, local publisher, who's primarily responsible for the Suttons' decision to see Victoria.

"I first met John Sutton when I went overseas to join the Royal Air Force during the Second World War. John taught me to fly and saved many of us Canadians by keeping us as instructors until he felt that we stood a good chance of getting into an aerial scrap and coming out alive."

"He commanded the famous 10th Squadron of four-engine Halifax bombers. One of England's war heroes, John won the Distinguished Service Cross and the Air Force Cross, all within 11 months."

With the reluctance of most heroes, when asked by this reporter, Mr. Sutton had glossed over his war service with "I was with Bomber Command."

And, although both he and his wife are agreed that an English doctor, practising under the national health program, faces morale-crumbing odds, their eyes shine with pride when they speak of their 18-year-old son, Hugo.

"He's a medical student in London and we wouldn't have it any other way, he's dedicated to the profession."

The Suttons have two other children. In view of their hopes of settling here, their 14-year-old daughter is aptly named Victoria. They have a younger son, Benjamin. He's 10.

Before returning to England, Mr. Sutton "would like to take a peek at Kelowna." One of the three companies he manages is a wine business which he inherited from his family. An expert in the art of creating good wines, Mr. Sutton is anxious to see our interior wine-making centre.

Mrs. Sutton won't be the first of her family to make a new life in Canada. Her great-grandfather was the late Sir John Coape Sherbrooke, a former governor-general of Canada after whom the Quebec city was named.

had made. There were styles for all occasions and also costumes in every shade and color, made for little girls who get a head start on the graces by attending dancing classes.

One such danseuse was 10-year-old Debbie Crozier, who made her debut in a miniature wedding gown, complete to the last detail. The dark-haired "bride" stole all hearts as she made her entrance.

To add to the interest, many of the part-time artists are contributing their time to give displays of the crafts which are their favorite relaxation.

Introducing guests to the intricacies of cake decorating are Mrs. D. E. Walker, E. Clark and Mrs. D. Forsberg. Others revealing the secret of their hobbies are: Weaving, Mrs. R. Gunn; sculpturing, Mrs. Lay; oil painting, H. Roberts; pastel painting, Mrs. S. E. Sunderland; model railroads, Mrs. James Turner; rug hooking, Mrs. William Esau, and marquetry, Mrs. Norman Read.

And for those addicted to the hobby of collecting, there are several collections which merit close attention. One such exhibit is a variety of silver spoons belonging to Mrs. M. E. Rath, including ones brought to Canada from countries ranging from Japan to Scotland.

Co-conveners of the two-day affair which began again today at 11 a.m. and will continue to 9 p.m. this evening are Mrs. R. D. Bennett and Mrs. R. A. Sharrocks.

DENMARK UPS ROYAL PAY

COPENHAGEN (AP)—The Danish government has proposed a pay increase for Princess Margrethe, the unmarried heir to the throne. Parliament is expected to approve the increase, which amounts to $9,285 and would bring her salary to $36,451 a year. Her father, King Frederik IX, is paid $543,000 a year.

Duke of Windsor In U.S. for Tests

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Duke of Windsor, wearing sunglasses to protect his eyes, arrived with his duchess Wednesday for a medical checkup in Houston, Tex.

The former British monarch and his American-born wife arrived aboard the liner United States.

The Duke, who said, "I feel fine," explained that he would undergo a series of tests at Methodist Hospital in Houston where he underwent abdominal surgery last Dec. 16.

Two months after his abdominal surgery, the 70-year-old Duke underwent two operations in Europe for a detached retina of the left eye.

Though his wife cautioned news photographers aboard ship to avoid setting off flashes directly in front of him, the Duke said he had comparatively good vision.

"It's something you learn to live with," he said of the eye surgery.

Fashions Seen at Empress Hotel

PAINTER INSPIRES NEW STYLE

Mondrian, a painter whose straight lines and use of brilliant reds, blues and yellows took the art world by storm recently, has broken into the world of fashion with the "patched" look in casual and day time wear.

Several of these new outfits, made with different colors and types of material in flowing symmetrical lines, were shown to more than 300 guests attending a "harvest of fashions," Wednesday afternoon in the Empress Hotel ballroom.

The show was sponsored by the Victoria Rotary Anns and featured fashions by Miss Frith's Ladies' Wear.

Evening wear was the highlight of the event and the fall's fashion favorite, velvet, appeared in a floor-length gown of rich brown, styled with a jacket top. The slim, close-fitting skirt was fashioned with a slit at the back for easier movement. A rolled neckline and the lowered hemline of the jacket were accented with intricate beaded embroidery.

Another model walked the runway in a gown of gold-velvet bodice and brocade skirt. A panel of exquisite crystal drops outlined the empire waistline. Similar highlights were on the sleeves of the brocade evening coat topping the ensemble.

Win Sinclair commented on the gowns modelled by Mrs. G. A. Veres, Mrs. Jack House, Mrs. J. Maurice Green, Mrs. R. Cranston, Mrs. J. Patterson, Mrs. L. Morrison, Mrs. D. Wagg and Mrs. M. L. Greene.

Margo Beauty Studios provided the hairstyles.

Following the show, tea was served. Convening the event was Mrs. Veres.

Well, those fragile-looking stockings turned out to be almost non-runnable. (They're knit with a special lock-stitch.) They have a comfortable ribbed top that fends off garter-snag. And a clever run-guard toe. That was three weeks ago Monday, and I've worn the same pair of Just Fabulous day and night. (They're flattering as a wink.)

TWO-DAY SHOW

Novel Experiment Proves Talent of Church Members

In a novel experiment this week, members of the Metropolitan United Church are proving that they're just as enthusiastic about their hobbies as they are about church work.

Led by the Metropolitan United Church Women, they've pooled talents to create a gigantic hobby show which was officially opened in Pandray Hall by art gallery curator Colin Graham, last evening. Almost 500 entries speak eloquently of the gifted fingers of their creators.

Exhibits range from a sensitive sculptured bust by Harry Lay called, "The Smiling Girl" to petit point and gros point pictures, hooked rugs, lace, cut-work, embroidery, knitted items model railroads, wood carving and ceramics. There's even before and after pictures of a 1929 Packard which has been restored to its former beauty by Ned Hammer.

Wednesday evening's entertainment included a fashion show which proved that the church women's nimble fingers are as practical as they're creative.

Youngsters, ranging from eight to 14 years old, joined the ranks of the workers by modelling clothes which their mothers

To Open Bazaar

It was announced this week that Mrs. George R. Pearkes will officially open the annual bazaar of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, to be held at brigade headquarters, 941 Pandora Avenue, on Saturday, November 6. The opening will take place at 1:30 p.m. Mrs. E. Harwood and Miss G. E. Hewlings will receive guests. Tea will be served and a drawing for tombola prizes will be made at 5 p.m. Among the many stalls will be one featuring arrangements of dried flowers, weeds and grass.

DEAR ABBY...

Hail the Conquering Hero!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Can you help settle an argument? It is between my husband and me and I hope you won't think it's too dumb to bother with. Our son has been away in the service for two years. He served his last eight months overseas, and we just got word that he is coming home. He was awarded three medals for bravery and we are very proud of him. I had my brother paint some "Welcome Home" signs which I want to put on our front lawn with flags all around. My husband says it will look like we're showing off for the neighbors and if we want to put up signs inside the house, it's okay, but not out in front of the house. Abby, I planned a big party with all our friends and relatives, and his friends, too, and thought the signs on the lawn would give our boy a thrill when he first catches sight of the house. What do you say, Abby?

PRUD MOTHER.
Dear Proud: I say put the signs on the lawn, and if you can line up a brass band—that's all right, too!

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago my husband took our sitter home and was gone longer than usual, so I asked Vernon what kept him so long. He said he'd given Laura a driving lesson. (Laura is a cute teen-ager and the daughter of friends of ours.) Well, that burned me up because Vernon is so fussy with his car he won't even let me drive it. I let that pass. Now something else involving Laura came up. Vernon heard she was looking for a job, so he volunteered the information that there would soon be an opening at the place where he works. Do you think I have something to be worried about? Maybe you can put my mind at ease. I am—

JEALOUS

DEAR JEALOUS: Only Vernon can put your mind at ease. Don't let these suspicions build up inside you. Tell Vernon you are jealous, and let him tell you why you have nothing to worry about.

DEAR ABBY: Several weeks ago I started having a series of baking failures. First a cake which I had made successfully dozens of times "ran over", and it took me an hour to clean up the mess it made in my oven. (Perhaps I should mention that the recipe called for 1/2 cup oil.)

Then my favorite cookies, which I had made for years, came out so dry I had to throw them out. Thinking my oven was off I had it checked only to find out it was perfect. I couldn't for the life of me figure out what was wrong.

Finally, I remembered that I had bought a one-cup measuring cup at my neighborhood supermarket. I carefully compared its capacity to that of my standard measuring cup, and to my utter amazement discovered that my "new" cup held one-fourth cup more! Pass this to your readers, Abby, for whatever it's worth.

CONFIDENCE REGAINED.
DEAR CONFIDENCE: Thank you for your helpful tip. All right, girls, when you've finished reading the newspaper, go measure your measuring cups. I've just checked mine and they are accurate—16 tablespoons to the standard cup.

CONFIDENTIAL TO GIL: That's why there are more doctors than there are clergymen. It's easier to practice than it is to preach.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DISAPPOINTED": What did you expect? "As is the mother, so is her daughter." (Old Testament, Ezekiel, 16:44.)

Troubled? Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes

"Spent an interesting three hours this afternoon playing spin-the-bottle with three secretaries while we were trapped in a stalled elevator."

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

When we work for charm we are apt to lose it, much as we lose happiness when we search for it, because both are by-products of an outgoing spirit and vibrant living.

Rochefoucauld wrote, "There are few women whose charm survives their beauty," yet this elusive, magic quality called charm changes a homely woman into a fascinating one and can make any woman seem beautiful at any age.

Some fortunate women are born with this happy quality. They do not have to learn how to be charming any more than a bird must learn how to sing. It comes naturally. However, this is far from true of everyone, and we should make deliberate efforts to improve our personalities. These are not vain or artificial.

There are literally hundreds of suggestions for developing charm. We should not scorn them. They provide working rules for conduct, which if followed, will turn thoughts out rather than in. We should remember, however, that such suggestions are only crutches, or knobs with which to open doors.

The phony pose of charm is easily detected. Even dogs and children can spot it, but the sincere wish to please and to communicate is always appreciated. It seems to me that the one essential ingredient of charm is a real interest in others and their ideas, dreams, problems and successes.

If this does not come naturally, learn to be interested through practice. Forget about how you impress others and deliberately turn your thoughts toward them. You will have many surprises. People who seemed so quiet and dull may have had some wonderful experiences or some unexpected skill or talent.

Everybody is a surprise package. Think generously and tolerantly of the human race and brighten daily living with a touch of whimsy and humor, and your friends, and even your relatives, will call you a charmer.

You will want an attractive frame for this charm, such as good grooming, a lovely figure and a clear complexion.

If you feel the need of crutches before you can let your natural charm shine forth, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet 57. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Hospital Alumnae Raises $200 for Students' Help

Colorful arrangements of flowers by Mrs. Ken Kissinger and a warm sunshine streaming through the windows set a gay scene when guests arrived at the nurses' residence of St. Joseph's Hospital, Wednesday afternoon. The occasion was a bridge-tea, sponsored by the hospital's school of nursing alumnae.

The sum of $200 was realized from the affair which was repeated again that evening, making a total of 45 tables in play.

Conveners for the afternoon were Mrs. G. F. Rose and Mrs. W. W. McLuhan while in charge of evening arrangements were Mrs. B. McLaren and Mrs. D. Browning.

The affair was opened by president, Mrs. Leslie Spencer, who was assisted in receiving by Sister Superior Mary Lucia.

Mrs. A. C. Bridge was refreshment convener. Serving on her committee were Mrs. Walter Miles, Mrs. J. Welch, Mrs. A. Midlane, Mrs. K. Roach, Mrs. H. Taylor, Mrs. H. Wilton, Mrs.

DUNK BABIES IN MACHINES

TURIN, Italy. (AP)—A baby-bathing machine drew lots of attention at Turin's annual technology fair.

Put on show by an Italian household appliance manufacturer, it can be likened to a dishwasher or clothes washer. It is fully automatic and provides a complete bath in five minutes.

The baby is placed inside the cylinder-shaped machine. Then jets of warm water spray around him, followed by a sprinkling of just the right amount of soap and a rinse to wind it up.

The manufacturers say they are not thinking of babies alone, but also are considering bathing machines for grown-ups.

The machines have a special advantage—they wash the back. Sorry, there's no dryer yet; you'll have to use a towel.

FIRST IN B.C.

Home-Care Plan Gets Area Nod

A co-ordinating centre will be set up in Greater Victoria to meet the needs of home-care patients.

The pilot scheme, sponsored by the Victoria Medical Society, is the first of its kind in B.C.

In future, doctors requiring home care for their patients will ring a central number outlining their needs.

It will then be up to the co-ordinator to make arrangements with the various volunteer organizations.

OWN ARRANGEMENTS

In the past, the doctor, and sometimes the patient, has had to make his own arrangements. This has often resulted in patients remaining in hospital when they could have been home.

Said Dr. David Boyd, president of the medical society: "With so many separate organizations in existence it's not always easy to readily determine just what services are available. Under the new system, the co-ordinator will have a list of every service. It will be up to him to decide what agency to contact."

Since the scheme will be experimental to start, the medical

HOME GARDEN

Check Your Variety

By HILDA BEASTALL

Every year around Thanksgiving time we hear from gardeners who are feeling frustrated because their chrysanthemums are not blooming for the festive occasion.

In today's gardens there are hundreds of varieties of chrysanthemums, each one with its own name.

Among them are early, mid-season and late varieties; also short, medium and tall kinds.

There are those known as sprays which produce dozens of cuts of smallish flowers in "sprays," and there are others called "disbuds."

The plants of the disbuds produce, under the diligent hands of the attentive gardener, the large flowered blooms, usually five or three to a plant.

WRONG PLANT

If the gardener happened to buy the wrong plant for the purpose in mind or an unnamed plant, it can easily be seen that the results will not be as anticipated.

Chrysanthemums as a border plant, or to supply cut flowers for the home, should be treated similarly to the yellow (or white) marguerite which is also botanically a chrysanthemum.

While the old plants will occasionally withstand the winter in the garden, most of the modern varieties succumb to frost.

DIG UP ROOTS

To overcome this drawback, the gardener will dig up his chrysanthemum roots after the flowers are finished, and keep them in a frost-free greenhouse, or a protected coldframe for winter.

Two-inch cuttings are made from the new shoots emerging from the roots in spring. After rooting in sand or peat, the young plants are put out into the garden in late April.

If this method is too much trouble, the gardener can buy the young rooted cuttings in April being sure he gets the kind for the purpose in mind.

Takeover Scorned

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor Minister Peterson said Tuesday the provincial government has no intention of taking over the brewing industry as suggested by Vancouver East NDP M.L.A. Arthur Turner and Alex McDonald.

Mr. Turner and Mr. MacDonald, in a telegram to the minister, accused the breweries of acting in an irresponsible manner in the current strike of brewery workers.

"I am hoping there will be a settlement forthcoming," Mr. Peterson said.

But there is nothing at this time to indicate a resumption of talks.

Mr. Peterson said efforts by the labor department to bring the striking union and the companies together have been unsuccessful.

The strike, started Aug. 23, has closed five breweries.

Sukarno Vetoes Anti-Red Moves

JAKARTA (AP) — President Sukarno and the leaders of Indonesia's army appeared today to be locked in dispute over the future of Indonesia's big Communist party.

Sukarno told his cabinet Wednesday he disapproves of the army's campaign against the Communist party (PKI) for its alleged involvement in the slaying of six army generals.

Sukarno's position was reported by First Deputy Premier Subandrio. After the 3½-hour cabinet meeting at the president's summer palace in Bogor, 40 miles south of Jakarta.

Subandrio, who also is foreign minister, said he believed the PKI statement Wednesday that it was not involved in the rebellion.

Two Communist cabinet members attended the Bogor meeting, but D. N. Aidit, leader of Indonesia's 3,000,000 Communists and a cabinet minister without portfolio, was absent.

ARMY CRACKS DOWN

The army command began cracking down on the Communists after it crushed the Jakarta coup attempt and issued a state-of-war proclamation last Saturday.

The army charged that Communist youths, disguised in uniforms, tortured and then killed the six generals, including Chief of Staff Achmad Yani. Their mutilated bodies were found in a common grave near Halim Air Base outside Jakarta.

The army was reported as arresting some 200 Communists and seizing a large number of weapons.

In Kuala Lumpur, Radio Malaysia reported that the army-controlled Jakarta radio was keeping up a steady fire of anti-Communist broadcasts, including a report that six big Moslem organizations had demanded the arrest and execution of Communist rebels and the banning of the PKI and its affiliates, including the 165 Sals trade union.

Diplomatic observers in Jakarta concluded that Sukarno apparently is determined to maintain the PKI in the face of the army's anti-Communist campaign.

Sukarno allowed the PKI to gain strength until it became the best organized political party in the country. He considered the Communists a good counter-balance to the army's power.

Pope Meets Orthodox Official

NEW YORK (AP) — A dramatic private meeting took place here Monday between Pope Paul and the leading Eastern Orthodox prelate in America, Archbishop Iakovos, it was learned Wednesday.

They held a 15-minute talk on the current difficulties of Orthodoxy's ecumenical patriarch, Athenagoras I of Constantinople (Istanbul), and joined in prayer for his welfare.

The Pope expressed "deep personal esteem and sympathy" for the Patriarch and "gave assurances of the willingness of the Vatican to offer all possible help," an Orthodox spokesman said.

There have been reports recently of Turkish restrictive measures against the Patriarch.

The Patriarch is the spiritual leader of about 200,000,000 Eastern Christians, similar to the Pope's position as leader of 500,000,000 Roman Catholics.

The Eastern and Western branches of Christendom split in 1054, but friendlier relations have developed since Pope Paul and the Patriarch met and embraced in a historic encounter in Jerusalem in January, 1964.

OWNER WILL REBUILD

Logging Camp Hit By Rock, Mud Slide

VANCOUVER (CP) — Logger Adam Yorke said Wednesday he will rebuild his Indian Arm logging camp, shattered early Wednesday by a rock and mud slide.

Yorke and his family of five escaped without a scratch when the slide hit the camp, 20 miles northeast of Vancouver.

"I thought sure we were all going to get killed," he said. The slide pushed two of the camp buildings into the water, demolished a boat and dock and wrapped a third building around a tree.

Yorke said his wife, his oldest son Bob and his daughter-in-law were in the cookhouse when the slide struck. He and his two younger children were in a nearby cabin.

The cookhouse was smashed against a tree and filled with mud, burying Mrs. Yorke up to the neck. Her son dug her out.

"It was just like an earthquake," said Yorke. "The ground was shaking and it was noisy as all get-out."

The cabin was pushed almost into the chuck. I looked out at the cookhouse and didn't figure anyone in there was alive.

"I went over and found there wasn't a scratch on anyone. It was a miracle."

Yorke estimated damage to the camp at $80,000, and said he isn't sure whether his insurance covers it.

He said he recovered most of his logs from the water and boomed them. He said the money they bring in will pay to get the camp going again.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

NEW YORK—Judy Garland is having the miseries again. Friends think the cause is her unwillingness to marry her constant companion, Mark Herron. Harold Lloyd, Jr., ill for many months, returns to work in December with a new night club act being written by Alan Hood and Richard Loring. Honey-mooners Jane Fonda and Roger Vadim had quite a spat in Paris the other day, but it's all sunshine again. Quite incidentally, Jane's current hairdo reminds many Parisians of the upswipe style made popular by a previous Mrs. Vadim, Brigitte Bardot. (That is, when Brigitte wasn't wearing it Lady Godiva style for the benefit of the cameras.) But then all of Roger's wives have had his indecipherable Vadim stamp. Get ready for this one. Curvaceous Monique Van Vooren is making a film in Chicago, which has suddenly become a Mid-West Hollywood. In it she plays the "ultimate woman," portraying 15 different females from a 15-year-old girl to a 77-year-old woman. The name of the flick is "Frank's Greatest Adventure"—but she swears it has nothing to do with The Clan. Very much to do with The Clan is Broadway's latest joke: "It's definite. Maureen O'Sullivan is going to marry Frank Sinatra, Jr."

First prize to the daffiest song title of the week goes to country singing star Jimmy Dickens, who has just recorded a new aria titled "May the Bird of Paradise Fly Upon Your Nose." Same to you, honey. Jackie Coogan is the latest addition to the cast of "A Fine Madness," being filmed in New York. He plays a local fireman who has a running feud with Sean Connery. Interesting note: Jackie's daughter, aged 11, is breaking into show business—doing commercials. A famous show biz star and his attractive daughter have had a giant misunderstanding, to put it gently. Papa has decided that he knows which fellows are best for his girl to date, and has been screening them to make sure they're good enough for her. She isn't at all happy, with his interference, because she's a big girl now—and his history of unhappiness with women makes him about the last one on earth to qualify as a matchmaker.

Comedian Gary Morton, who was born with another name, is now legally Gary Morton. He's the chap who married Lucille Ball. Sophie Tucker, a sprightly 77, is most chipper when she's working. She's solidly booked up to her 80th year. Gene Tunney and his pal Bernard Gimbel led the applause at Asti's, the Greenwich Village opera haunt, when Met Opera star Jerome Hines surprised the audience with an impromptu aria from his table. Tempus fugit, and you can say that again, Romma, the just-15-year-old daughter of Linda Christian and the late Tyrone Power, is about to do her first big role in an Italian movie. She'll play a 16-year-old bride.

The list of characters in the book "Is Paris Burning?" is staggering—536—and the cinema version, being made in Paris, is including almost all of them. In fact, there are so many featured roles, they've virtually run out of French actors, and that ain't easy, because nearly all Frenchmen are actors. Bob Dylan's kid brother, David Zimmerman (said to be a prodigy as an arranger and composer) will enter college in Dallas next year as a music major.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions to schools to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answers each day receives a 40-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Albert Huerta Jr., age 11, of Tucson, Ariz., for his question:

Why are the rainbow colors always in the same order?

A shimmering rainbow has more colors than a person can count, and they always arrange themselves in the same order. In a single rainbow, the reds are at the top and the blues at the bottom. In a second bow, the reds are at the bottom, but the one by one order of colors is the same because of the nature of light.

The rainbow appears when the sun is climbing up from the east or sliding down to the west. In the opposite side of the sky a shower of raindrops must be falling from a cloud. The raindrops act as tiny glass prisms and shiny mirrors; they bend or refract the sunbeams that strike them and then reflect them to our eyes. The raindrops do this by separating and scattering the different wave lengths of light.

Light is a form of electromagnetic energy. It is created in an orderly fashion, and it behaves according to orderly rules. Sunlight fans out from the sun, travelling in straight lines at about 186,000 miles a second. Its energy pulses along in wave lengths somewhat like the crests and troughs of ocean waves. Some are longer and some shorter than others. Travelling through space, the assorted wave lengths blend together as white or colorless light.

All sunbeams have the same assortment of wave lengths and each must bend and separate at a certain angle. Each separated wave length becomes a certain color. The longest become red rays. They must follow angles that take them to the top of the rainbow. The shorter and still shorter wave lengths bend at sharper and still sharper angles. They separate from each other in order based on their wave lengths and become orange and yellow rays, greens and blues. The shortest wave lengths turn the sharpest corners and angle off to take their places at the bottom level of the banded colors.

There are many joining angles of refraction and reflection in a rainbow. But the simple order of colors is caused by bending the orderly wave lengths of light. When a second bow appears above the first, an extra angle twists the band of spectrum colors upside down. The reds are at the bottom, the rainbow colors still arrange themselves in the same order.

TEEN-AGE CANADA

How Many Know Story Behind UN?

By JACK HUTTON

If you've read your newspapers this week or listened to newscasts you've heard the same phrase over and over — the United Nations.

There have been few front pages since midsummer that haven't referred to the world assembly struggling with the problems of our future.

How many Canadian students really know what is behind this 20-year-old experiment in providing a safety valve for the tensions of a rapidly changing world?

High school and university students will have the chance early next month to sample the first newsletter aimed specifically to them on problems of the UN, a newsletter that will seek their views and opinions.

I heard about the United Nations Echo from Tom Schatzky, National youth secretary for the United Nations Association, a personable young man who is also an executive member of the Canadian University Service Overseas.

Headlines

Glaring headlines about clashes between India and Pakistan these past few weeks have meant more to Tom than most Young Canadians: he taught as a CUSO volunteer last year close to the disputed Kashmir border.

And this is why he feels it so important that more students become familiar with the machinery of world government: it must have public support to work properly.

The Echo (the French version will be L'Echo de l'UN) will invite book reviews, cartoons, articles—an entire spectrum of young Canadian opinion.

"It won't be confined to UN activities either," Tom said. "I hope students will use the pages to raise other issues such as Canadian unity and separatism. It's their newsletter."

Plans call for 2,000 copies of the first issue which means that not every secondary school in Canada will get one. But any school or student can.

"We'll naturally include all schools where we have UN Clubs or Current Affairs Clubs," said Tom. Close to 600 high schools either belong to the national association or are affiliated in some way.

Which age level will the newsletter be aimed at? Association spokesmen believe students in Grade 10 or higher grades will be most naturally interested—but that doesn't rule out Grade 9 students.

2,000 Interested

Close to 2,000 Canadian high school students demonstrated a keen interest in the world organization this summer by attending seminars organized by the national association.

And according to Tom, the discussions were on a level that would tax many adults. "Students have an intelligent understanding of problems and issues that many don't suspect," he said.

Another 40 senior high school students, selected by their local schools, will attend a week-long seminar at the United Nations in New York next Easter.

"I think the first mistake people make about the UN is to associate it entirely with the debates on foreign policy that receive the most publicity," said Tom.

"The truth, as students quickly find out, is that the UN has a host of important but little known subsidiary organizations that are doing tremendous work. They need far more public recognition and support."

If your school isn't receiving the Echo, how to see it? "I'd be delighted to hear from anyone interested," said Tom. "And we'd also welcome material or ideas for articles."

The address of the United Nations Association in Canada is 329 Bloor Street W., Toronto 5. If you're interested in the UN Echo or would like information about forming a student UN Club, address your letter directly to Tom Schatzky, national youth secretary. It's one of the most worthwhile student ventures that will be launched in Canada this year.

BEHIND 'CURTAIN'

Black Sea Villa Planned By Thomson

LONDON (CP)—Lord Thomson, Canadian-born publisher, said Tuesday he is planning to build a holiday villa on the Black Sea coast of Bulgaria.

"I like the Black Sea coast very much," Thomson said in an interview.

During a recent tour of Communist countries, he had talked with the Bulgarian premier and received a promise of full co-operation and encouragement when he asked whether he could build the villa.

"I was told they would like me to build there; that I could sell it later privately if I wanted and that it would be a perfectly safe investment."

"I was frankly very impressed with the Black Sea coast. There are lovely sand beaches, fine hotels and restaurants. It's an ideal place."

Asked whether he, as a lifelong exponent of capitalism, felt any qualms about putting up a villa in a Communist country, Lord Thomson answered quickly: "Not a bit. I've been received very well everywhere behind the 'curtain'—which for me doesn't really exist any more—and I would have no misgivings about building there and taking my family there."

Thomson said he is negotiating to sell his villa at Cap d'Al in southern France, bought five years ago for £50,000 ($150,000). He spent a further $30,000 renovating it and building a swimming pool.

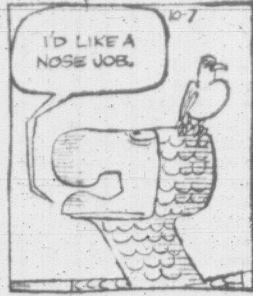

"I just wanted a change. I've been there about five years and I thought it would be nice to get to a different part of the world."

The Bulgarian villa still has to be designed, but the publisher said he hopes it will be ready for next summer.

Logger Killed Near Alberni

FRANKLIN RIVER—Logger Dennis Provencal was killed instantly Wednesday when hit by a falling log.

The 24-year-old shovel operator was working at the Mac-Powell operation 20 miles north of Port Alberni at the time of the accident.

An inquest was to open today on Mr. Provencal. He leaves a wife, Connie, and one child at 120 Fourth Avenue South, Port Alberni.

Wednesday was his second wedding anniversary.

LAKE COWICHAN—Fred Olson, 40, has just been licensed as one of the select few cougar hunter-guides in B.C.

He celebrated Saturday by taking a Seattle party hunting and they bagged a 100-pound female.

Mr. Olson has been hunting 25 years and has shot 187 cougars. His father, Peter Olson, 73, who still hunts, has shot over 200 cougars.

Some 27 boys and girls from Grade 12 at Lake Cowichan Senior Secondary School were sitting in on a trial being heard by Judge L. Arnold Hanna, of Nanaimo.

Teacher George Boechler explained all the students are majoring in law.

NANAIMO (CP)—A complete logging camp has been set up near here to teach men to be loggers.

The first six-week vocational training school course began Monday, with 20 students. The program is sponsored by the federal and provincial governments.

SIDNEY—Victoria Jaycees will bleed in Sidney on Tuesday. Celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Canadian Junior Chamber of Commerce, 50 city Jaycees will join Sidney members in donating a pint of blood each to the village group's blood donors drive.

NORTH COWICHAN—Reeve Donald Morton said Wednesday the $1,250,000 referendum in school district 67 will fail if too many people get the impression Chemainus is being robbed of its high school.

He said Ladysmith board should make its plans clear to avoid public misunderstanding.

If the referendum passes Nov. 6, senior high school students will be consolidated at Ladysmith.

Chemainus will continue as a junior high. Reeve Morton said he had heard Chemainus might be the vocational centre of the school district.

BECOMING A RARE SIGHT is this scene of a whaler heading home with a large kill. This picture of the West-whale 5 with a catch of Sei whales

'NOT ENCOURAGING FINANCIALLY'

Whaling Nothing to Blow About

VANCOUVER (CP)—The whaling fleet returned from waters off Vancouver Island Wednesday and reported a total season catch of only 859, down 21 from last season.

British Columbia Packers Ltd., which owns a half-interest in Western Canada Whaling Co., said the whaling operation still is marginal and not encouraging financially.

Japanese interests own the other half of the whaling fleet. K. F. Fraser, president of British Columbia Packers, repeated earlier statements that North Pacific whaling stocks may be wiped out.

Whaling expeditions were sent into the North Pacific this season by Canada, Japan and Russia.

Fisheries sources indicate the Japanese and Russian kill was heavy.

Japanese and Russian fleets have been sending whaling fleets into the North Pacific regularly since whaling stocks in the Arctic were practically exterminated, said Mr. Fraser.

He said he will go to Japan shortly to discuss the future of Pacific whaling.

East Indians Donating To Fund for Homeland

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Canadians of East Indian origin have launched a fund for people in the Punjab, India, who are suffering as the result of the struggle between India and Pakistan.

Ajab Sangha Singh, a leading member of Victoria's Sikh community, said a fund has been started in Vancouver to provide medical supplies and food.

B.C.'s 10,000 East Indians, mostly members of the Sikh religion ad originating from the Punjab, are deeply, emotionally affected by events taking place in India.

Many have relatives living in villages situated between 20 and 100 miles from the front line.

One man, Piara Singh Lalji of Port Alberni, has lost a brother. He was killed in action while serving with the Indian army.

"We haven't yet received any news from our families and relatives," said Mr. Sangha. "Some villages have been bombed and no doubt there will be some bad news for some Victoria families.

Kuldeep Singh Bains, businessman, said regardless of whether peace is restored between the two countries, the Punjab will suffer economically as the result of the conflict.

"There is a serious danger of famine within the next year," he said. "If the war interfered with the sowing of crops, there will be a shortage of food. There is never too much food in India.

Like many Sikhs, Mr. Bains attempts to be impartial in his views on the troubles dividing India and Pakistan.

RELIGIOUS WAR

He agreed the deep-rooted cause for the present conflict is religion—Hindus and Moslems.

"It has always been so for hundreds of years," he said. "When the British were in India, there was some validity to their argument that they were there to keep the peace."

Some Sikhs even feel that India should never have asked Britain to leave the country until Muslims and Hindus had reached an agreement on unification.

Azab Sangha said the conflict will seriously affect progress in India and Pakistan.

"They should be thinking of building up their countries instead of fighting," he said.

Most Sikhs agree that the unsettled state of affairs between India and Pakistan poses a serious threat to world peace.

Unless solved, they said, Asia may become the centre of a third world conflict.

As for India, they said, it should discard its policy of neutrality.

There are few families originating from Pakistan living in British Columbia. There is only one family in Victoria.

Escape Legal Judge Decides

DUNCAN—A man who took a flying leap through the front window of Duncan RCMP building was freed Wednesday on a charge of escaping lawful custody.

David Eugene Webster, Duncan, sent splintering glass in all directions when he escaped June 21.

He had been arrested and charged with being an interdict in possession of liquor. This charge was subsequently dismissed.

His counsel Wednesday, Alistair I. MacDonald, said Webster's escape was prompted by his being incensed at a wrongful arrest.

Judge L. Arnold Hanna found police made insufficient check of the interdict list and pointed out Webster had no liquor in his possession.

Gold River Immigrant Free on Bail

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 24-year-old Fijian has been freed on bail pending an appeal against a deportation order.

Philip Shankar, arrested a week ago at Gold River, spent his first day of freedom Wednesday writing thank-you letters to some of the 800 residents of Gold River, Port Alberni and Ladysmith who have written letters and signed petitions asking the government to allow him to stay in Canada.

Gordon Dowling, Shankar's lawyer, said Wednesday he will show the letters and petitions to Immigration Minister Nicholson in a bid to have the deportation order quashed.

Shankar had worked at Gold River since July of 1963. He is alleged to have jumped ship in Victoria.

Antique Dealer 'Fair' After Highway Crash

DUNCAN—Antique dealer William Hill received a head injury in a Trans-Canada Highway crash Tuesday.

Mr. Hill was thrown into the windshield of his van as it spun round after colliding with a truck driven by Wlodzimierz Panczyzyn, of Shawinigan Lake.

Mr. Hill was pulling on to the highway from his log cabin store when the collision occurred.

He was reported in "fair" condition.

QUINTIN HOGG sees disaster

'Man Needs World Authority'

FREDERICTON (CP) — A call for establishment of a world authority to maintain peace and promote economic, cultural and scientific developments was made Wednesday by former British cabinet minister Quintin Hogg.

Mr. Hogg, science minister in the former Conservative administration of Sir Alec Douglas-Home, spoke at a convocation exercise at the University of New Brunswick where he received an honorary doctor of laws degree.

"If we continue with our present chaos I foresee nothing but unhappiness and disaster for man in the 21st century," the Conservative member of Parliament said.

"I do not believe that in the modern age mankind can live without a world authority."

Mr. Hogg, member for St. Marlebone, said if France or Germany wish to have "the political sympathy or military alliance with Britain in the indefinite future—and they need both—they must cease . . . to continue the attempt to exclude Britain and other associated powers from the equal access which they need in order to sustain their obligations."

"If European countries think that we are going to contribute indefinitely to European security with our industries permanently excluded or placed at a disadvantage in their markets, they have . . . another thing coming."

Feuding Pair Back In Court

A pair of feuding neighbors were told to settle their differences amicably Wednesday in central court.

Magistrate William Ostler said he felt Malcolm McSorley, Munn Road, was provoked into assaulting his neighbor Harold Bukin.

But he ruled McSorley "pursued the complainant far too vigorously. He used too much force."

He placed McSorley on $100 bond to be on good behaviour for three months. A second charge of creating a disturbance was dismissed.

Magistrate Ostler said he found it a fact Bukin stood directly in front of McSorley's car as he came out of his driveway July 21 to start the fracas.

Bukin denied this.

He said McSorley got out of his car when he was 150 feet from him then came at him in the classic boxing pose and began to throw a series of jabs.

Bukin said McSorley hit him 12 times as he backed up and then fell into a small hole at the side of the road.

Then he "pounced" on him and began kicking him, Bukin testified.

Court was reminded by defence counsel that the pair are no strangers to city courtrooms.

Last spring Bukin was fined $50 and placed on $250 bond for creating a disturbance. The complainant in the case was Malcolm McSorley.

'Favoritism' Charged In PO Promotions

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal postmen submitted a brief Wednesday to Andre Montpetit, who heads a federal government inquiry into the working conditions of Canadian postal employees, in which they accuse post office management of using favoritism in promotions.

The Montpetit commission began its study in September following a nationwide postal strike that lasted longest in Montreal and has held hearings in Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa.

Commission hearings are behind closed doors, but Montreal postal employees released their brief to the public.

The report is a preliminary one, they said, and the Montreal postmen intend to submit a more complete brief when the commission returns to Montreal in January.

The brief complains that "promotions are too often given

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Bishops at the Vatican ecumenical council clashed openly today on whether the Roman Catholic Church should condemn all nuclear weapons or accept some as defensive arms.

Prelates from Poland, Spain, France and England threw their support to a view favored by many U.S. bishops that the use of modern arms is legitimate in some areas.

Other prelates, including a French and Italian cardinal, appealed for an outright condemnation of war in every form, nuclear or conventional.

Cardinal Ottaviani's ovation in St. Peter's Basilica came from conservative and progressive prelates alike.

The clash occurred as the 2,200 council fathers — prelates from around the world — prelates from the close of general debate on their schema (draft doctrine) on modern world problems.

PUNISHMENT NEEDED

Cardinal Ottaviani said that there should be punishment for nations violating peace rulings of the United Nations. Calling for a ban on "all totalitarian governments," he said:

"There should be sanctions for disobedience toward decisions of international organizations."

Supporting the Italian Cardinal's views, Joseph Cardinal Martin of Rouen, France, said:

"The distinction between offensive and defensive war is in a practical, sense useless today."

The world was "sitting on a volcano which could erupt at any time," he added.

It was the second consecutive day for such attacks on the schema. But unlike Wednesday this time there were many bishops who spoke out in favor of the document.

Among them were 75 French bishops.

Doctors Want 'Opt Out' Means For Medicare

VANCOUVER (CP) — The head of the Canadian Medical Association said Wednesday any doctor or patient should be able to opt out of any medical care plan.

Dr. R. O. Jones of Halifax told the annual meeting of the British Columbia Medical Association:

"This right is essential if any plan is to receive the co-operation of Canadian doctors."

"It is the only guarantee that a doctor can practice his profession in a way that satisfies his own conscience, and not a paying agency."

"Denial of this right to doctor and patient constitutes an invasion of personal liberty which cannot be tolerated."

Dr. Jones said the CMA opposes compulsory medical care plans administered directly by a government agency.

Dr. Hart Searrow, incoming president of the BCMA, told delegates that compulsory versus voluntary medical insurance systems is an issue which will affect generations of doctors.

DEGRADATION

"What non-medical people cannot know is the degradation of a professional person forced to supply a lower standard of care by forms and frivolity and the sheer weight of numbers," he said.

Dr. Searrow promised continued co-operation with the B.C. government, which operates a medical plan approved by the BCMA.

Dr. Peter Banks of Victoria, outgoing president of the BCMA, warned the doctors to weigh their actions carefully before opting out of the B.C. government plan.

"It is a fair plan, and it's in the interest of all of us to practice inside it," he said.

Dr. Banks said the BCMA must accept responsibility for professional self discipline. "If we don't someone else will," he said.

COMMONWEALTH HELP CAN GET CHINA A SEAT

LONDON (Reuters)—A Commonwealth initiative on getting a United Nations seat for China is suggested today by the British Liberal newspaper, The Guardian.

"This group is in a position to ensure the admission of China. In 1963 only seven Commonwealth countries voted for China. Australia, Canada, New Zealand, Cyprus, Jamaica and Malaysia voted against, and Nigeria, Sierra Leone and Trinidad abstained. If these countries were to reverse their previous stand, they could, together with new Commonwealth members, ensure a majority vote."

Pair Faces Fraud Charges Over Windfall Promotion

Royal Inquiry Hits MacMillans

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP)—Criminal fraud charges were placed against the nationally-known mining team of George and Viola MacMillan today after issuance of a royal commission report lashing persons involved in the 1964 bubble of Windfall Oil and Mines Ltd. stock.

Attorney General Wishart said more charges will be disclosed later today. He did not state who else will be charged.

Two charges of fraud were lodged against each of the MacMillans. The husband was president and his wife promoter of Windfall when it took off for a dizzy ride on the Toronto Stock Exchange in July of last year.

Attorney General Wishart said they will surrender here Oct. 15. They were said to be in Nevada, site of the original properties of Windfall, whose skyrocket rise was hitched to rumors of a rich find in the Timbuctoo, Ont., area last year.

Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly of the Ontario Appeal Court in his royal commission report—made public a few hours before the charges were lodged—attacked the pair for issuing "misleading information that kept Windfall stock aloft while they made a killing."

JUSTICE KELLY
... clears minister

Shocking Conduct By Ex-Director

Along with them, Mr. Justice Kelly castigated John Campbell, resigned director of the Ontario Securities Commission, for "shocking" conduct in interfering with market activities of the bouncing Windfall and at the same time trading in it personally while an official.

Campbell and his wife made a $29,000 profit on Windfall's rollercoaster ride, some of it by selling short before the stock skidded.

The MacMillans were charged under Criminal Code sections providing a maximum 10 years imprisonment for affecting the market price of stock by deceit or falsehood with intent to defraud, or for defrauding the public.

The commissioner was critical of some aspects of the way the stock exchange operates and he recommended "fairly drastic" changes in its conduct of business. He also proposed the Ontario Securities Commission be strengthened as an independent agency, rather than an arm of the attorney-general's department as now.

He was also caustic about the way some individual members of the brokerage community climbed aboard Windfall for a lucrative ride.

But Mr. Justice Kelly exonerates Mines Minister George Wardrobe, who took a hand in the situation when Windfall was on the point of being suspended from exchange dealings. The commissioner found his conduct "entirely consistent" with his duties.

The commissioner did not recommend any punitive action against anyone.

He also expressed the view that it is "hardly conceivable" that there ever will again be such a combination of circumstances as those that contributed to the fluctuations of Windfall shares in July, 1964.

1,000,000 Words, 70 Witnesses

Mr. Justice Kelly heard 1,000,000 words from 70 witnesses in three months of public sittings in delving into the phenomenon of Windfall, which jumped in July, 1964, from an obscure 56 cents to a $5.60 bonanza on the coattails of the fabulous $2,000,000,000 base metal strike of Texas Gulf and Sulphur Co. in the Timmins area.

Hydro to Put Grab On Rich Mine Claims

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two part-time prospectors expressed surprise today on learning that their mining claims, once valued at $100,000, are to be expropriated by the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

"This is the first I've heard of," said Fred C. McNeill, in a telephone interview from Penticton. "A few days ago B.C. Hydro offered us $100 for our claims but we thought this was ridiculous and didn't accept it."

In Victoria Wednesday the cabinet endorsed an order-in-council authorizing B.C. Hydro to take possession of four mining claims in the Revelstoke area without consent of the claim holders, for the Mica Creek power project on the Columbia River. McNeill and a friend, Eric S. Hill of Narayana, each held two of the claims which they located and recorded in 1953.

McNeill said he believes the claims contain kyanite, mica and garnet. He said he and Hill were once offered $100,000 by a mining company but the offer was withdrawn when B.C. Hydro's interest in the properties became known.

"We realize that we can't hold up the building of a dam but we do think we should get fair compensation," McNeill said. "There's a lot of difference between $100 and $100,000."

In Victoria, mines minister Brothers said the matter should go to arbitration.

If the prospectors can show the $100,000 offer was bona fide, they would have a pretty good case before an arbitration board.

RHODESIA

United States Intervenes In Crisis

LONDON (Reuters)—The United States stepped into the Rhodesian crisis at the 11th hour today when an American charge d'affaires delivered a message to Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith.

The message was delivered orally by Philip Kaiser from the American embassy just before Smith was scheduled to meet British Prime Minister Wilson in an effort to reach a compromise on the thorny question of Rhodesian independence.

Embassy spokesmen would not reveal the content of the message.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Wilson and Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley reported on the deadlock negotiations to a 1½-hour cabinet meeting.

A group of Americans paraded outside the Rhodesian high commission office with placards reading: "U.D.I. (unilateral declaration of independence) means war with Africans," and "Mr. Wilson should be tough with Smith."

Talks have continued in London for three days as Prime Minister Smith attempted to press his case for Rhodesian independence with no strings attached.

Today's move by the U.S. followed representations to Smith by the Canadian and New Zealand governments through their high commissioners Tuesday, warning of the dangers of any unconstitutional seizure of independence.

Smith and Wilson appeared to be steering a collision course as they prepared for what were seen as the decisive talks today.

The rupture that seemed likely with Smith demanding independence under Rhodesia's present all-white government, and Wilson continuing to refuse unless the colony's African majority were assured of voting rights—threatened to wreck the Rhodesian economy and perhaps even shatter the British Commonwealth.

President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania, one of the African Commonwealth members, declared Wednesday night in a televised interview that if Britain yielded to Smith's demands, Tanzania would drop out of the Commonwealth.

Ont. Liberal Chief Faces Four Charges

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Ontario Liberal leader Andrew Thompson today was remanded until Oct. 21 when he appeared in court here on four charges laid following a two-car collision late Wednesday in which four women were injured.

Police said he was charged with dangerous driving, impaired driving, careless driving and failure to yield one-half of the road.

Four women from Harwood, Ont., occupants of the second car, were treated in hospital. One woman, Mrs. Ida O'Connell, was in serious condition with head injuries.

Mr. Thompson was released on $100 bail.

'Lime Pit Murders' Now Campaign Issue

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Quebec's macabre lime pit murders have become an issue in the federal election campaign as opposition leaders are using it to try and shake the Pearson government.

Meantime from Quebec police sources have come reports of an international criminal association engineering fraudulent bankruptcies and arson in Montreal, Toronto, Calgary and Winnipeg.

Opposition leader Diefenbaker and New Democratic party leader T. C. Douglas have sought to lay at the feet of the federal Liberal government some of the responsibility for the grisly case in Quebec.

Mr. Douglas said today "public figures" might yet be involved in the bankruptcy swindles that led to discovery of the three murder victims. (Quebec Justice Minister Claude Wagner has said he believes at least 12 people have been executed in the style of Murder Inc. to stop investigation into a $100 million bankruptcy and arson fraud ring.)

LEADS TO COMMONS

In Montreal a senior fraud squad investigator told newsmen that the trail of phony bankruptcies in Quebec leads into the House of Commons.

He said that seven or eight men who have been members of parliament have been involved in bankruptcies under investigation. Most of them represented Quebec constituencies either as Liberals or Conservatives, he said.

The remains of three lime-burned bodies have been recovered from graves in swampy land south of Quebec City. Police are digging for two other bodies at other points south of Quebec.

They would have been key witnesses in bankruptcies now

'Should Have Laid Charges'

TORONTO (CP)—Erik Nielsen, Progressive Conservative member of the last Parliament for the Yukon, said Wednesday night that charges should have been laid against the Sefkind brothers, Max and Adolph, on the basis of information supplied to the superintendent of bankruptcy.

Mr. Nielsen said in an interview that Prime Minister Pearson now should order an RCMP investigation into the bankruptcy of the Sefkind, who sold furniture on credit to two federal cabinet ministers. Max Sefkind has since died.

Mr. Nielsen said reports on the Sefkind could be found in the offices of J. S. Larose, appointment of bankruptcy, and in other Ottawa offices.

At a nomination meeting in Brantford, Ont., Wednesday night Mr. Nielsen said the slayings in Quebec are the result of international and national crime cartels "that have reached their tentacles into the highest offices of the land—that is, the office of the prime minister."

He did not elaborate on the reference to Mr. Pearson's office.

10-Point Farm Program Includes Income Support

WINNIPEG (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson announced Wednesday several new farm policy election planks, including a commitment to support Prairie farm income if grain marketings fall off.

He told a press conference the 10 points, which include at least one previously announced, are commitments to be undertaken after the Nov. 8 general election.

The program would not all be put into effect at once but would be carried out over the five-year lifetime of the next Parliament.

Chief points in the program:

- Federal payment of 25 per cent, instead of the present 20 per cent, of crop insurance premiums plus half the administrative costs provided the provincial government contribute five per cent of the premiums.

- Government purchase, re-development and resale to farmers of uneconomic farms coupled with re-training and re-settlement aid to farmers who want to take up new occupations.

WOULD GIVE CONTROL

- Establishment of a Canadian dairy commission to give producers of manufacturing milk control of prices, quotas, quality and export. This was expected to lead to a national average price for manufacturing milk of $3.75 to $4.00 a hundredweight.

- Similar marketing legislation for other products, including a national sugar policy.

- Extension of unemployment insurance to the main groups of full-time farm workers.

- Establishment of a livestock feed board to ensure feed grains are available in Eastern Canada and British Columbia "when, where and in the quantities needed."

- Creation of a Canadian farm management service to help farmers determine market trends and plan production.

- An additional $50,000,000 fund under the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act for rural economic development. This fund was announced previously.

- A new mortgage program to finance farm housing, especially for farm workers.

- Prairie farm income support.

Arthur Mayse

As one cursed, with a nasty habit of looking gift horses in the teeth, especially when they happen to be belting along in the general election stakes, I propose to restrain my jubilation over Ottawa's sudden, startling discovery that higher education costs money until the payoffs are posted for all to see.

I also suggest that, to the average Canadian university student and his average parents, a sharp and immediate cut in fees would be more welcome by far than the promise of federal scholarships a year from now.

This doesn't mean I'm against scholarships and bursaries as rewards for academic achievement. Should events prove that Ottawa's largesse is to come with no strings attached, the event will be cause for rejoicing.

But it will accentuate rather than ease the dilemma of the student majority, the boys and girls who in four university years, will not come within snelling distance of a scholarship.

Their problem is deadly simple, and in too many cases, simply deadly. How, on summer and sparetime earnings often hundreds of dollars below the cost of a university year, and with such limited help as their families can offer, are they to muddle through to a degree?

They can go into debt, if their loan applications are accepted.

But what these young people need, before the rising of the hunger-moon that shines upon the ill-heeled university student each January, is a drastic cut in the cost of higher education.

To avoid misunderstanding, let me emphasize that I do not believe university fees should be abolished, even though Newfoundland's shrewd Premier Smallwood proposes not only to offer free higher education but to pay students a salary.

In Canada's newest province, the need for trained men and women is desperate. More often than not, the outport boy or girl is poverty's child, and can attend university only if government pays the shot.

We here are in better case than Newfoundland. By all means that much-boasted provincial surplus, say I, but only to the point where Uvic and UBC grants would permit our university administrators to reduce the present basic cost of a two-semester year by half. Provide also for the bona fide distress case, and offer free on-campus board for the boy or girl who needs it.

Beyond that generous point, I don't think B.C. should go, or its students expect it to. Higher education should be worked for and contributed to, within the ability of the person who seeks it.

Our students are too young and yeasty to embrace the anaemic doctrine of the welfare state. If, with moneys from income and corporate taxes, our provincial government piggy-backs them over a rough spot, the children mustn't drag their feet!

Should the federal government wish to contribute through increased grants to that necessary easement, let Ottawa do so. As I suggested earlier, though, I intend to restrain my personal enthusiasm until I'm assured that this particular dark horse isn't of the Trojan variety.

Canada, as any observer must now realize, is deeply involved in her own state's rights tussle, on issues which must be resolved before national unity can be more than a dream.

Education, even though contributed to by federal grants, has remained a provincial responsibility since Confederation. Should this understanding continue? Will it, when those grants are vastly increased, and Canada's first minister of education sets up shop at Ottawa?

Does the piper play for free, or will a bill be presented? Due time?

I'll wait for the answers, meanwhile hoping British Columbia will move swiftly to help not merely a handful of her senior students, but all of them.

FLAGGING COLOR DISGRACE, C OF C SPOTTERS REPORT

Victoria Chamber of Commerce thinks it's time Maple Leaf flag-flyers took a close look at their faded colors. Vice-president Courtney Haddock told a meeting of directors Wednesday that some of the flags now flying over city buildings were a disgrace.

"They're so faded you can't tell what they are," he said.

President Richard Bower agreed. He suggested that an appeal be made that all faded flags be replaced.

FOR MANY JOBS—

Employers Demand Too Much Schooling

Employers who demand higher educational standards than the job requires are partially responsible for today's crowded universities.

Minister of Education Leslie R. Peterson told the 27th annual Pacific Northwest Personnel Management Association conference today that:

"The whole business of the university degree has been overplayed.

"You may be partly responsible by demanding ever-higher, but sometimes unnecessary qualifications."

In an interview following his speech, Mr. Peterson said only 25 per cent of B.C.'s high school student body should be on the university program.

"But it is closer to 50 per cent," he said.

"Many of the youngsters are being pushed towards the university degree as a status symbol or by unreasonable demands by prospective employers."

"My main complaint is that they start the university program but do not have the ability to complete it."

"They finish up unhappy, frustrated individuals."

"They would be much happier, much more useful, and, I might say, often better paid if they trained themselves for highly skilled technical jobs in industry."

In his speech, Mr. Peterson appealed to employers to play a greater role in training workers by establishing in-plant training programs.

"It is a proven fact that where employers fail to provide in-plant training programs the skills of their workers deteriorate," he said.

"This great advantage both to the employer and the employee is often overlooked."

KEY SPEAKER

Mr. Peterson was keynote speaker at the two-day conference in the Empress Hotel.

More than 250 personnel specialists and management representatives have registered for the conference which continued this afternoon with conferences and special workshops.

Tonight's highlight will be a smorgasbord dinner at 6:30 p.m., followed by dancing in the Crystal Garden.

Friday will be devoted to management and labor talks, closing with a banquet in the evening.

This is the third time the Victoria chapter has been host to the convention.

ART DIRECTOR

Museum Expert Returns

A 36-year-old specialist in museum artwork and displays has come back to Victoria to help blaze new trails with the B.C. provincial museum.

Erik Thorn, chief of displays at the National Museum of Canada in Ottawa for the past five years, joined the staff this week.

Museum director Dr. G. Clifford Carl said Mr. Thorn will be involved in the displays and artwork for the $7 million centennial museum complex now under construction.

Mr. Thorn, born in Toronto, attended school at Margaret Jenkins, St. Michael's and Boys' Central School here in his youth.

He went on to study art in Toronto, Paris and London and worked for the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto and the British Museum in London. He also made a trip across Africa to sketch and collect specimens of mammals.

"I came back because I was very much intrigued with the opportunity here," Mr. Thorn said.

"I was familiar of course with the very exciting geography, human element and natural history of this province and the idea of making an exhibit of all this in the new building appealed very much to me."

He will make his home here with his wife, Miriam, also an artist, and their two sons.

Helmet Law Enforcement Begins Now

A concerted drive to cut down on motorbike accidents is under way.

From now on, no more warnings about crash helmets. Those riders who don't wear them get tickets.

Motor Vehicles Superintendent Ray Haddock has written Greater Victoria police departments ending a three-month period of grace. Enforcement now is the word.

Meanwhile motor vehicle branch inspectors are daily conducting tests of applicants for motorcycle licences. Ability to operate safely on wheels must be demonstrated.

And Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce has announced Vancouver Island's first motorcycle safety symposium will be held here in November.

The Jaycees will sponsor the event in conjunction with the Victoria Motorcycle Club and the motor vehicle branch.

The motor vehicle branch will supply adequate written tests and traffic division police officers will judge the driving skill tests.

The Jaycees will award an aggregate trophy. Tentative location for the symposium is the Memorial Arena parking lot. Date will be announced.

TO HUMBLE MAN

"Perhaps they were put on earth to humble man," he said.

"They are mute, obedient creatures and they are capable of infinite loyalty."

Monsignor Greeley said the Old Roman Catholic Church broke with the parent body in 1640 over a liturgical dispute.

"We are actually the illegitimate daughter of Rome," he said.

"But they won't admit they have a daughter. We were never excommunicated from the Roman Catholic church. But our case has been before the papal authorities for 250 years."

STRIKE COSTS HOTELS HEAVILY

The delegation stressed that some of the member hotels rely heavily on beer sales to stay solvent and the situation is becoming critical for these.

They took with them a brief that outlined the economics of the problem here and urged the labor department to make every effort to expedite the settlement of the brewery workers' strike.

Kenneth King, president of the B.C. Hotels Association branch in Victoria, and Frank Burger, a local director of the provincial association, met Mr. Peterson.

They emphasized the loss figure was for only part of the strike figure and involved only one kind of monetary loss.

In addition, said Mr. King, waiters and others have lost wages as the parlors were closed by the beer shortage, and some employees are drifting into other lines of work as hopes for an early settlement fade.

Break-In Nets Thieves $80

Thieves took between $70 and $80 from a desk in an upstairs dining room overnight at Roelofsen's Restaurant and Delicatessen, 769 Fort St.

Entry was gained through a rear window.

Oven Panned, Tenant Earns Court Roasting

A man who pawned his landlady's furnishings pleaded guilty today in city police court to two counts of theft under $50.

Heinrich G. Beyer, 2533 Quadra, will be sentenced on Oct. 15.

Detective Edward Hardy told the court Beyer removed a $35 oven from the basement suite he rented and took it to a Johnson Street shop, where he pawned it for $5 May 21.

On May 26 he took a heater valued at $24 and pawned it at the same shop for another $5.

Beyer told police he intended to redeem the goods at a later date.

LAPSED CATHOLICS

New Exodus Possible Says Cecilia

Mother Cecilia Mary said today she may lead lapsed Roman Catholics into the Old Roman Catholic Church.

"I haven't yet made a definite decision," she said, "but it is probable. There are so many lapsed Roman Catholics in this part of the world.

"They are hungry for a religious faith on which they can depend."

The 76-year-old Mother Cecilia said joining with the Old Roman Catholic Church might be the sequel to her six months old dispute with the orthodox Roman Catholic Church over the Good Shepherd Animal Shelter at Metchoon.

On Wednesday she received a phone call from some displaced Roman Catholics in Seattle.

"They are anxious to join us," she said, "and there are many like them."

Mother Cecilia said her animal shelter property is still for sale, but she has transferred her small flock of animals out of the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Victoria, Most Rev. Remi de Roo, who is now in Rome.

She said that she and the six other sisters at the shelter now belong to the Sovereign Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

They have received a personal invitation to join the Old Roman Catholic Church from Monsignor Gerard Greeley, now visiting here from Old Bridge, New Jersey.

"It was a friendly visit and we appreciate it," Mother Cecilia said.

In an interview, Monsignor Greeley called for the removal from office of Bishop de Roo.

"I demand that the bishop be transferred and put in a place of penance," he said. "He has violated his authority and he should go."

Monsignor Greeley said it was "obvious" that Bishop de Roo hates animals, although they are "creatures of God."

Fishermen Ask More Rescue Ships

Pacific coast fishermen are sending a three-pronged demand to Ottawa for better coast guard protection in the open waters off the B.C. coast.

At a special meeting in Vancouver, sponsored by the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (Ind.), fishermen Wednesday approved the dispatch of a communication to Transport Minister Pickers-gill, asking:

Four additional coast guard vessels of 150 to 175 feet in length; a fleet of helicopters stationed at strategic points along the coast and allocated to rescue duties; and a central manning pool to recruit and train personnel to man the rescue craft.

Spokesmen made clear the move was not a criticism of the work of the present RCAF Air Sea Rescue Service, but was pointed at the "inadequate" facilities now available.

INADEQUATE

Union organizer Tom Parkin said the present air-sea rescue organization did a fine job but the protection afforded fishermen in open waters was totally inadequate.

For open water work, he said, American coast guard ships and helicopters had to be called in.

The B.C. coast is at present served by two Canadian Coast Guard ships, the Racer and the Ready, which fishermen say are too small for open water work.

Air-sea rescue also has helicopters and Albatross aircraft available for search and rescue work.

Victoria to Share in $2 Million Outlay

By the time Shell Canada Ltd. begins exploratory drilling off the West Coast late in 1966 the company will have spent $2 million for materials, supplies, services and labor in the Victoria-Vancouver area.

D. W. Smith, manager of Shell's northern division exploration department, told the Rotary Club at a luncheon meeting today that the total cost of preliminary work between 1961-1965 would be $6,500,000.

"The $6½ million program represented the first phase of company activities in this area," Mr. Smith said.

The second phase started when a $9 million contract was awarded at the end of August to the Victoria Machinery Department for the construction of Canada's offshore drilling rig," he added.

May Break Deadlock Over Earlier Offers

University of Victoria is prepared to donate a site for the Greater Victoria centennial sports stadium.

A formal offer of the more than 40 acres on the northwest side of the Gordon Head campus will likely be made next week to the Greater Victoria Centennial Committee, it was learned from a university source.

This new proposal may break the deadlock developing between Victoria and Saanich over the location of the sports stadium.

Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis appeared to look on it with favor. Mayor R. B. Wilson was unavailable for comment.

Victoria has offered Topaz Park as a proposed site and Saanich has offered a 40-acre site in the Burnside-Tillicum area.

University officials say theirs is the most logical site because it fits in perfectly with the proposed road, plan for Greater Victoria.

The land is located to the west of the present student services building, between the proposed extension of Ruby and Sinclair Roads and the university Ring Road.

The university site was previously designated for use as a sports stadium and track in the university's master development plan.

Detailed plans of the layout of the playing fields and the stadium will be placed before the centennial committee when the offer is made.

The parking areas on the site would be built in any case by the university for student use.

Land in the general area is selling for about $15,000 per acre so in effect the parcel of land is worth about $600,000.

Since the land would be donated to the municipalities the entire amount of the centennial grant could be used in developing the stadium and playing fields.

Meanwhile Saanich has enlisted the support of the Centennial Stadium Committee of the Victoria Sports Council.

The committee chairman Pat Frumento said the committee feels the Saanich site is better because it has a larger area.

Topaz Park has an area of about 25 acres.

GRANT TOO SMALL?

The Victoria offer has found favor with Oak Bay, mainly because the city is prepared to donate money from the McPherson-Estate funds for use in building the stadium. City officials have said the centennial grant is not large enough to build a "worth-while project."

"This could be an excellent compromise, although the Tillicum-Burnside site we have put forward has real recreation potential," Reeve Curtis said.

"If this is acceptable to all concerned, the Tillicum-Burnside site still stands high for recreational use," he said, suggesting a swimming pool and other playing fields.

"I'm sure Saanich council will consider this offer very, very carefully."

Saanich reluctance to accept the Victoria plan "could easily be interpreted as parochialism. It isn't," the reeve assured.

Topaz Park site has severe limitations and is not a good stadium site in the opinion of council and planning experts," he said.

Labour Council Backs Strikers Against B-A

Striking B.A. oil men appeared to Victoria Labor Council Wednesday for help in manning picket lines.

A letter from the union local said the 75 men involved in B.C. were unable to picket all key plants.

At the same time, members were urged in a letter from the B.C. Federation of Labor to return B.A. credit cards and consider all the company's products "black."

The council endorsed the request.

$2 MILLION JOB FOR FISH LABS NEAR NANAIMO

Work will start this fall on an extension to the Nanaimo Laboratory of the Fisheries Research Board.

Minister of Fisheries H. J. Robichaud said in Prince Rupert today.

Mr. Robichaud said close to $2 million would be spent to improve research facilities near Nanaimo.

Initial work would cost $275,000 — for the reclamation of three acres of waterfront and construction of a wharf and access road.

Mr. Robichaud said work should start early in 1966 on the $1,500,000 extension to the laboratory itself. It would open in 1967.

FIRST RACE: Pascanna ran for $2,500 on opening day and when they drop this sharply they are usually suspect. But in this case the drop seems explainable — they apparently believe she was in too tough. Solid Beat looks as the one to beat — she's been hanging on better and the track won't stop her. Fishermaid ran into a little trouble in her last and if Salas gets clear she could get on the board. If Pascanna is the filly we think she is, she should take it sun, rain or concrete. . . . PASCANNA (Solid Beat).

SECOND RACE: Sans Brazil just finished mopping up the floor with much the same kind and we see no reason why shouldn't repeat. She drops three pounds and hasn't run a bad race in a light campaign. Cor-Asia is one we fear most. Throw out her stop try — she likes it fast. Rush Call is the danger from behind. Phanta's girl is better than her last show and could surprise at a price. . . . SANS BRAZIL (Cor-Asia).

THIRD RACE: Horses stepping up, horses dropping. . . . handicappers in a conundrum. Border Spy is the big question mark. He's travelled well with better but he lacks a race over the track and hasn't run in more than a month. We look for Windy Song, Swan Lady, Counterpart and Man of Mark to vie for the lead with Actella, Wally's Gem and Monday's Lady not far behind. The winner might come out of the pack and if Monday's Lady is returning to the form she showed in the spring, she could take it all. . . . MONDAY'S LADY (Wally's Gem).

FOURTH RACE: Totem Miss ran smack into a pair of hot ones, Whang Leather and Colinda and couldn't hold them. But there doesn't seem to be anything of that calibre against her here. Jeaneelz hits rock bottom today but the way she's been stopping is not much consolation even to her most ardent backers. Miss Simon and Nepenthe have a look with these with these and if Star Pal forgets to stop he could share it. They're switching riders on Mr. Wasp and although he's picking up five pounds his mud try was encouraging. . . . TOTEM MISS (Nepenthe).

FIFTH RACE: His Jimmy drops again today, looking for a spot. This one might be alright except in Advance those to run. They both like to plow in front early and could easily choke each other. Orisla has been chasing good ones and seems at his best but he'll have to come from out of it. Mr. Terry drops six pounds and off his Portland form belongs. Our serious thinking, though, was between Carmar Doo and Ardorin. We don't like many horses breaking from the outside but Ardorin obviously needed her last after a layoff and should be much sharper today. Carmar Doo loomed dangerously — he might have made his move a trifle too soon — but from the rail Salas should be able to save ground. In a grab-bag. . . . ARDORIN (Carmar Doo).

SIXTH RACE: Right down into the eligibles the contention runs deep here. There's such a lack of early pace that Brown Wheat, if she draws in, could stroll out in front and be very hard to catch. Chekaj Chekaj comes off two longer races but he's very fit and probably is the chalk. Hamish, the prairie gelding Fair Results and Dr. Peace all have been knocking around the door and could open it. Sir Lea gets awfully far out of it and gets a different boy. Little Boy Fly packs weight and wins impressively over much the same and could be very dangerous. If she gets a top ride, however, they may all be eating the dust of Flying Sea Spray in the stretch. . . . FLYING SEA SPRAY (Little Boy Fly, Chekaj Chekaj).

SEVENTH RACE: If speed wins races, Who's Haydn will be a tough customer in here. He can throw sizzling fractions when he's right and he looked pretty good the other day. Lido Librar will argue the point the

Pair Faces Fraud Trial
In Windfall Promotion

By JOHN LEBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — Criminal fraud charges were placed against the nationally-known mining team of George and Viola MacMillan today after issuance of a royal commission report lashing persons involved in the 1964 bubble of Windfall Oil and Mines Ltd. stock.

Attorney-General Wihart said more charges will be disclosed later today. He did not state who else will be charged.

Two charges of fraud were lodged against each of the MacMillans. The husband was president and his wife promoter of Windfall when it took off for a dizzy ride on the Toronto Stock Exchange in July of last year. Attorney-General Wihart said they will surrender here Oct. 15. They were said to be in Nevada, site of the original properties of Windfall, whose skyrocket rise was, hatched to rumors of a rich find in the Timmins, Ont., area last year.

Mr. Justice Arthur Kelly of the Ontario Appeal Court in his royal commission report — made public a few hours before the charges were lodged — attacked the pair for issuing "misleading" information that kept Windfall stock aloft while they made a killing.

Shocking Conduct By Ex-Director

Along with them, Mr. Justice Kelly castigated John Campbell, resigned director of the Ontario Securities Commission, for "shocking" conduct in interfering with market activities of the bouncing Windfall and at the same time trading in it personally while an official.

Campbell and his wife made a $29,000 profit on Windfall's rollercoaster ride, some of it by selling short before the stock slumped.

The MacMillans were charged under Criminal Code sections providing a maximum 10 years imprisonment for affecting the market price of stock by deceit or falsehood with intent to defraud, or for defrauding the public.

The commissioner was critical of some aspects of the way the stock exchange operates and he recommended "fairly drastic" changes in its conduct of business. He also proposed the Ontario Securities Commission be strengthened as an independent agency, rather than an arm of the attorney-general's department as now.

He was also caustic about the way some individual members of the brokerage community climbed aboard Windfall for a lucrative ride.

By the time Windfall had nosedived back to 80 cents at the end of July, the MacMillans' interests — George was president and Viola promoter — had cleaned up close to $1,500,000, according to evidence. Some Continued on Page 2.

Hydro to Put Grab
On Rich Mine Claims

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two claims which they located and recorded in 1953.

McNeill said he believes the claims contain kyanite, mica and garnet. He said he and Hill were once offered $100,000 by a mining company but the offer was withdrawn when B.C. Hydro's interest in the properties became known.

"We realize that we can't hold up the building of a dam but we do think we should get fair compensation," McNeill said. "There's a lot of difference between $100 and $100,000."

In Victoria, mines minister Brothers said the matter should go to arbitration.

THE PM'S TOOTH ACHED
AND A NATION WAS BORN

By MYRON K. MYERS

LONDON (AP) — A toothache determined the exact time of the granting of independence to the Maldives Islands — the newest, smallest and least populated member of the United Nations.

Maldivian Prime Minister Ibrahim Nasir had been nursing a toothache at his home in Male, the capital of the British-protectorate island chain in the Indian Ocean. Since there are no dentists in the Maldives, he set out on the three-day boat trip to Ceylon.

The British had held the Maldives since 1887, but had long ago drawn up independence papers for the 95,000 inhabitants. So Nasir decided July 26 that since he was in Colombo, Ceylon, he would drop by the British high commissioner's office and sign the papers. That was about all there was to it.

There was no Union Jack to haul down. No members of British royalty were present. Nasir enabled the Maldivians to join the stampede of newly emerging countries simply by signing his name.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The charging Minnesota Twins routed Sandy Koufax today and went on to defeat Los Angeles Dodgers 5-1 for a two-game lead in the World Series.

Jim Kaat scattered seven hits and singled across two runs while getting key support from Zoilo Versalles and Tony Oliva.

Koufax, a 26-game winner and the majors' strikethrough king, was knocked out in the sixth inning when the Twins grabbed a 2-0 lead. Minnesota battered Don Drysdale, the other member of Los Angeles' big two, in the series' opener Wednesday.

DROVE IN FOUR RUNS

Versalles, who drove in four runs Wednesday, led off the sixth by reaching second base when his hard smash got by third baseman Jim Gilliam for a two-base error. He scored the first run on Oliva's double, and Oliva scored as Harmon Killebrew singled.

Versalles tripled off reliever Ron Perranoski in the seventh and darted home on Perranoski's wild pitch.

A crowd of 48,700 saw the Dodgers score their only run in the top of the seventh on singles by Ron Fairly, Jim Lefebvre and John Roseboro.

The teams take a day off Friday, then move to Los Angeles for the next three games, if all are needed, starting Saturday.

'SELECTED
AMNESIA?'

WINNIPEG (CP) — Conservative Leader Diefenbaker said today Prime Minister Pearson's denial concerning the existence of a report on fraudulent bankruptcies "appears to be another case of selected amnesia."

"Or else he was told and has forgotten," added the Tory leader at a press conference.

Mr. Diefenbaker quoted Mr. Favreau as telling the Commons on March 29 that it would be improper to make public such a report.

LEADS TO COMMONS
In Montreal a senior fraud squad investigator told newsmen that the trail of phony bankruptcies in Quebec leads into the House of Commons.

He said that seven or eight men who have been members of Parliament have been involved in bankruptcies under investigation. Most of them represented Quebec constituencies either as Liberals or Conservatives, he said.

The remains of three lime-burned bodies have been recovered from graves in swampy land south of Quebec City. Police are digging for two other bodies at other points south of Quebec.

They would have been key witnesses in bankruptcies now under investigation in Quebec. The Montreal fraud squad officer said the former MPs were creditors of bankrupt companies or ran political interference for them, presumably for financial or other gain.

Mr. Wagner said police are "on the verge of a definite breakthrough" in the seamy bankruptcy racket.

10-Point Farm Program Includes Income Support

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson announced Wednesday several new farm policy election planks, including a commitment to support Prairie farm income if grain marketings fall off.

He told a press conference the 10 points, which include at least one previously announced, are commitments to be undertaken after the Nov. 8 general election.

The program would not all be put into effect at once but would be carried out over the five-year lifetime of the next Parliament.

Chief points in the program:

- Federal payment of 25 per cent, instead of the present 20 per cent, of crop insurance premiums plus half the administrative costs provided the provincial government contributes five per cent of the premiums.
- Government purchase, re-development and resale to farmers of uneconomic farms coupled with re-training and re-settlement aid to farmers who want to take up new occupations.
- Extension of unemployment insurance to the main groups of full-time farm workers.
- Establishment of a live-stock feed board to ensure feed grains are available in Eastern Canada and British Columbia "when, where and in the quantities needed."
- Creation of a Canadian farm management service to help farmers determine market trends and plan production.
- An additional $50,000,000 fund under the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act for rural economic development. This fund was announced previously.
- A new mortgage program to finance farm housing, especially for farm workers.
- Prairie farm income support if marketing declines. Mr. Pearson, arriving here for two days of campaigning in Manitoba, told a 25-minute press conference details of many of the points in the program will be given at later stages of the campaign.

U.S. Intervenes In Rhodesia Fray

LONDON (Reuters) — The United States stepped into the Rhodesian crisis at the 11th hour today when an American charge d'affaires delivered a message to Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith.

The message was delivered orally by Philip Kaiser from the American embassy just before Smith was scheduled to meet British Prime Minister Wilson in an effort to reach a compromise on the thorny question of Rhodesian independence.

Embassy spokesmen would not reveal the content of the message.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Wilson and Commonwealth Secretary Arthur Bottomley reported on the deadlocked negotiations to a 14-hour cabinet meeting.

President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania, one of the African Commonwealth members, declared Wednesday night in a televised interview that if Britain yielded to Smith's demands, Tanzania would drop out of the Commonwealth.

Smith and Wilson appeared to be steering a collision course as they prepared for what was seen as the decisive talks today.

The rupture that seemed likely—with Smith demanding independence under Rhodesia's present all-white government, and Wilson continuing to refuse unless the colony's African majority was assured of voting rights—threatened to wreck the Rhodesian economy and perhaps even shatter the British Commonwealth.

Mr. Smith's move was seen as a last-ditch effort to force Britain to accept his terms. He said the British government was "steering a collision course" and that he was "prepared to go to the end."

DEMONSTRATION STAGED

A group of Americans paraded outside the Rhodesian high commission office with placards reading: "U.D.I. (unilateral declaration of independence) means war with Africans," and "Mr. Wilson should be tough with Smith."

Talks have continued in London for three days as Prime Minister Smith attempted to press his case for Rhodesian independence with no strings attached.

Today's move by the U.S. followed representations to Smith by the Canadian and New Zealand governments through their high commissioners Tuesday, warning of the dangers of any

'Should Have Laid Charges'

TORONTO (CP) — Erik Nielsen, Progressive Conservative member of the last Parliament for the Yukon, said Wednesday night that charges should have been laid against the Sefkind brothers, Max and Adolph, on the basis of information supplied to the superintendent of bankruptcy.

Mr. Nielsen said in an interview that Prime Minister Pearson now should order an RCMP investigation into the bankruptcy of the Sefkind brothers, who sold furniture on credit to two federal cabinet ministers. Max Sefkind has since died.

Mr. Nielsen said reports on the Sefkind brothers could be found in the offices of J. S. Larose, superintendent of bankruptcy, and in other Ottawa offices.

At a nomination meeting in Brantford, Ont., Wednesday night Mr. Nielsen said the slayings in Quebec are the result of international and national crime cartels "that have reached their tentacles into the highest offices of the land—that is, the office of the prime minister."

He did not elaborate on the reference to Mr. Pearson's office.

FRAUD CHARGES

members of the brokerage community had stretched the regulations to cash in, too.

The commission commented that some of these seemed to think the exchange was "a private gaming club" for the use of special privileges to their own advantage.

Most of the gyrations of Windfall-located only 4 1/2 miles from Texas Gulf's find—were pegged to a drilling sample, or core, taken from the property in early July. While the MacMillans kept it under cover, rumor sent the stock sky-high. When the core was disclosed publicly as valueless, on July 30, the Windfall boom collapsed.

KNEW IT WAS WORTHLESS

As early as July 6, the commission says, George MacMillan must have been aware of the core's lack of value. This knowledge "was, no doubt, shared by his wife."

"At any time after the opening of the market on July 6, had George and Viola MacMillan seen fit to make a frank statement regarding what was in the drill core, the unusual market action would have been appreciably slowed if not stalled."

"Not only did they refrain from telling the truth, but in such statements as were made, the facts which were stated and the manner in which they were framed were such as to be misleading and must have been calculated so to be."

PROVIDES ADVANCES

He said the sort of program which would be covered in the income-support plan would be cash advances on untaxed grain. Amendments to provide such cash advances would be placed before Parliament.

However, the income-support promise would also include non-emergency programs such as the extra aid to payment of crop insurance.

On unemployment insurance for full-time farm workers, he said the unemployment insurance commission expects to have regulations ready by the start of 1966 covering the first groups.

He said Agriculture Minister Hays will go into the details of income-support levels.

Mr. Hays had been impressed during a visit to Europe earlier in the year by examples of government purchase, re-development and re-sale of uneconomic farms and a good deal of work had been done on the proposed program by him and Forestry Minister Sauve.

The purpose was to get people off land which would never be economic, consolidate farms into economic units and re-sell them for farming. This might be one way of using some of the new $50,000,000 ARDA fund.

PROMISES CARRIED OUT

He said in reply to questions that he considers the Liberals have "substantially carried out our promise" to name a minister for eastern agriculture.

Mr. Sauve had charge of rural development and certain other functions previously filled by the agriculture minister as well as of the forestry department.

"I'm not saying all this is going to be done overnight. It's a program for a parliament."

Mr. Pearson paid a helicopter visit to a farm near Rivers, Man., to survey crop damage from wet weather before arriving here. He remains here overnight before moving on to Winkler, Man., for a public meeting.

Hotel Fined For Color Bar

MONTREAL (CP)—Hilton of Canada Ltd., was found guilty Monday of discrimination against a Negro applicant for a nursing job at Montreal's Queen Elizabeth Hotel and was fined the minimum $25 and costs by Judge Marcel Gauthier.

The sessions court judge handed down an oral decision on a charge brought by Mrs. Gloria Baylis, 35, mother of two who said she was turned down for a part-time nursing job because of her color.

The Quebec government laid the charge under a discrimination law that went into effect Sept. 1, 1964.

tion for taking no action when faced with an international bankruptcy racket netting tens of millions of dollars.

He has demanded that the government should produce a "hidden" report on bankruptcies. He has alleged that if it had been made available by Ottawa there would have been less possibility that these "horrible crimes" would have been committed.

CAN'T BE TABLED

Any creditor is entitled to see the report which sets out all the debtors, but it is not available to the public and consequently cannot be tabled in the House of Commons.

Mr. Douglas said "there has been gross negligence on someone's part."

"The finger points directly to the former federal minister of justice (Guy Favreau) to whom the federal superintendent of bankruptcies reports," he said.

ECM Talks Open

PARIS (Reuters) — France and its five European Common Market partners have started conversations on the Common Market crisis, it was disclosed today.

Quebec justice department officials in Quebec are also exploring the possibility that underworld associates of the late Max Sefkind, the bankrupt furniture dealer, who gave two federal cabinet ministers extremely easy credit terms, are involved in the murders.

Student Loan Plans Not 'Only Solution'

OTTAWA (CP)—The Bladen report on higher education expenses misgivings about two student aid programs advocated by the Liberal party.

The commission of four experts says it is worried about over-dependence on student loans as opposed to non-repayable aid.

It adds that tax concessions to students and their parents would be more effective and more easily administered than the much discussed proposal for 10,000 national scholarships.

Both the loans plan and 10,000 scholarships of $1,000 each annually were promised by the Liberals in the 1963 election. Prime Minister Pearson promised Tuesday that if re-elected

GROOS RE-ELECTED

'Atmosphere Improving Among NATO Countries'

NEW YORK (CP) — Capt. David W. Groos, Liberal member of Parliament for Victoria attending the NATO parliamentarians' conference, said Wednesday night "there has been a remarkable improvement in the atmosphere among the Atlantic Alliance countries" since last spring.

He said he has found that the French delegation to the week-long conference is of the opinion that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization "is a good thing" and that "it is essential" for United States troops to remain in Europe.

Groos said some delegates had been apprehensive before the opening of the conference Monday about President de Gaulle's threat to withdraw France from the alliance because of De Gaulle's dissatisfaction with the military organization arrangements.

But as the talks got underway, he said, "we found that France is not dissatisfied with the treaty itself" but only with some of the present arrangements of the alliance.

Underlying the apprehension of the member nations is the fact that under Article 13 of the North Atlantic Treaty any NATO country can give a one-year notice in 1969 of its interest to withdraw within one year.

France had expressed dissatisfaction with the arrangements of NATO. She seeks greater sharing of authority. One of the questions discussed by delegates was the French dissatisfaction.

EXCHANGE IDEAS

The parliamentarians' conference gives the delegates of the NATO nations an opportunity to exchange ideas on the various issues although they speak only as individuals and not as spokesmen for their governments.

Groos was one of eight members of the Canadian delegation, reduced from the normal 15 because of the Nov. 8 general election in Canada. The other Canadians taking part are senators.

Despite the election campaign, Groos had to attend because he is a rapporteur of the military committee, a post to which he was re-elected Wednesday for a second term.

He said in an interview prior to his departure for home that his report to the committee requested that France spell out specifically what points in the treaty she finds dissatisfactory.

"We must know ahead of time just what France wants," he said, adding that both NATO Secretary-General Manlio Brosio of Italy and the conference president, Senator Henri Moreau of Belgium, sought the same information.

Canada made a recommendation on the standardization of military equipment and procedures to the military committee and the plenary session is expected to approve the committee's suggestion to set up a sub-committee to give further study to the matter.

Groos pointed out that Canada's experience with the U.S. in the standardization of equipment might be helpful in the study of the question. He gave as an example the building in Canada of the U.S.-designed F-104 fighter bomber on duty with the NATO force in Europe.
